Nuclear protest ends

Concord, N.H. (UPI) — An estimated 500 antinuclear demonstrators agreed Thursday to end 12 days in custody at National Guard armories by accepting criminal trespass convictions and release on personal recognizance bail pending appeal.

Rockingham County Attorney Carleton Eldredge said Thursday demonstrators at the Somersworth, Portsmouth and Dover armories agreed to the plan, to go into effect Friday. He said protesters at the Manchester and Concord armories also were expected to accept the proposal.

The plan called for demonstrators to appear Friday at Hampton District Court, plead innocent and accept a verdict of guilty, a $100 fine and a 15 day jail sentence. They then would be freed on personal recognizance bail pending appeal to superior court.

Senate battle expected

Washington (AP) — Out-numbered Republicans on the Senate Rules Committee gave up their fight Thursday against the Carter administration's election day voter registration bill but vowed to renew the battle on the Senate floor.

The committee passed the measure by a 5-4 vote after Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., the ranking minority member, said it was obvious that administration forces were in control and that to continue offering amendments was an exercise in futility.

"The sooner we can carry our case to the floor and to the public, the better," he said.

Castro's sister writes

Miami (UPI) — The exiled sister of Cuban President Fidel Castro said in an open letter to President Carter Thursday that Cuba is interested only in political and monetary gains, not in friendship with the United States.

"Those who state that the lifting of economic sanctions against Cuba and/or the establishment of relations with its Communist government do not constitute condoning or accepting its actions are wrong," Juanita Castro said.

Fifth Nixon show set

Washington (UPI) — An associate of David Frost announced Thursday a fifth interview with Richard Nixon would be televised dealing with Watergate and the famed 18½ minute tape gap.

Bob Zelnick said the fifth program also would contain a variety of foreign affairs topics — Vietnam, strategic arms, China, not included in the second program televised Thursday night.

Producers raise prices

Pittsburgh (AP) — Second-ranked Bethlehem Steel Corp. and seventh-ranked Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. joined other major producers Thursday in raising prices about 6%, virtually assuring that the new prices will stand.

Just can't skate around

Pineville, La. (UPI) — It already costs money to walk a dog and ride a bike on the city streets. Soon there will be a charge for roller skating and riding a skateboard.

The Pineville City Council unanimously passed an ordinance this week requiring children or adults to obtain permits if they want to use roller skates or a skateboard on city streets.

Nixon rejected Soviet 'madness'

Washington (AP) — Richard Nixon says he rejected as "sheer madness" a Soviet proposal that he send two American divisions into Israel during the 1973 war to help impose a cease-fire while Russian troops were moved into Egypt and Syria.

The former president, ranging over 5½ years of foreign policy in an interview broadcast Thursday night, said joint superpower intervention might have kept the Mideast peace but it would have raised "the possibility of a big-power conflict."

In the interview with David Frost, second in a five-part series of remembrances, Nixon took credit for preserving Egyptian President Anwar Sadat from "a coup or worse" by persuading Israel to release its hold on an encircled Egyptian army.

Recalling the implicit pressures he brought to bear on the Israeli government, Nixon said that like the storied Mafia "Godfather," he "gave them an offer that they could not refuse" — a promise of unflinching U.S. support whenever Israel came under attack.

Israel subsequently relented and the stage was set for negotiated interim settlements with Egypt and Syria.

The timing of the broadcast of Nixon's interview led President Carter to move up his news conference by five hours to avoid a conflict.

Carter told reporters Thursday he had seen only "a small part" of the first interview and did not intend to watch the second.

The interview with Nixon was shown over a makeshift network of 155 stations. Frost is paying Nixon $500,000 for the interviews, plus a percentage of the gross.

Without having to deal with the tensions of Watergate, which forced him to resign in 1974, Nixon sketched with considerable detail his impressions of Henry A. Kissinger, his principal foreign policy adviser, Chairman Mao Tse-tung of China and Soviet leaders Nikita Khrushchev and Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Nixon said Kissinger "couldn't stand the bureaucratic infighting" and that Kissinger feuded with William P. Rogers, who he finally succeeded as secretary of state in 1973.

Kissinger advised Nixon it might be politically dangerous to send more than limited military support to Israel during the 1973 war but Nixon gave the order: "Send everything that flies."

However, in a segment of the interview that was edited out before the broadcast, Nixon emphasized that his disagreements with Kissinger "were always on tactics and never on strategy."

Continuing, Nixon said: "People who think Kissinger was basically a soft-liner and I was a hard-liner just don't know what each of us believed."

Mao Tse-tung, despite complications of at least a partial stroke and having to converse almost entirely in monosyllables, "was in charge of himself and he was in charge of China" until his death in 1976.

A tough and ruthless leader, Mao lived simply and was aided by "rather pretty Chinese girls" who lifted him up and helped him walk.

Khrushchev, the late Soviet leader who steered his country away from the harsh regime of Josef Stalin, was both boorish and brilliant, with "a terrible inferiority complex."

By contrast, Brezhnev, his successor and current head of the Kremlin hierarchy, is not so quick but is "far better mannered" and "a much safer man to have sitting there with his finger on the (nuclear) bomb." Somewhat of a "fashion-plate," Nixon said Brezhnev likes beautiful cars and beautiful women.

Nixon's analytical description of the October 1973 war in the Middle East began with what he called a "heated discussion" with Brezhnev at their summit meeting earlier, in June of that year.

According to Nixon, the Soviet leader insisted that Nixon force the Israelis to withdraw from all the former Arab territory captured in the Six-Day War of 1967.

Nixon said he refused because he thought Israel's interests would be served by negotiating some adjustments in the borders with its Arab neighbors. "I still believe that," he said.

Legend snipes at unlucky day

Associated Press

Today is the day triskaidekaphobics might well stay in bed. Not only is it the 13th of May — triskaidekaphobia is the fear of the number 13 — but it's Friday the 13th, regarded by the superstitious as the unluckiest of days.

In the past, May 13 has been unlucky for people as various as the Viennese — Napoleon captured Vienna on May 13, 1809; the Japanese — a night club fire took 116 lives at Osaka on May 13, 1972; and Richard Nixon — his limousine was stoned in Caracas, Venezuela, on May 13, 1958, while he was on a goodwill tour as vice president.

But it has not all been bad. The last battle of the Civil War was fought on May 13, 1865, at Palo Pinto, Tex. And while legend has it that it's unlucky to be born on the 13th, Joe Louis was born on this day in 1914 in Lexington, Ala., and went on to be the world heavyweight boxing champion from 1937 to 1949.

So, why all the fuss anyway about Friday and 13? The belief that Friday is a bad luck day, according to some lore, stems from Christ's crucifixion on a Friday.

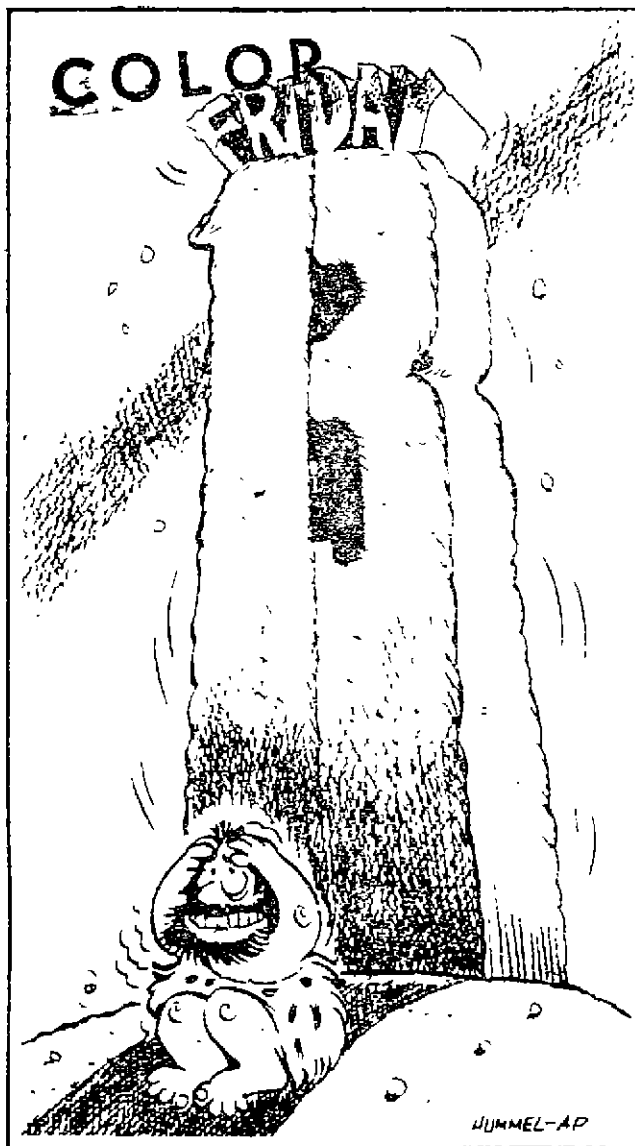

Legend also has it that sailors hated to begin a voyage on a Friday. But one Irish folk belief holds that it is good to die on Friday, be buried on Saturday and get prayed for on Sunday.

Friday comes from the Anglo Saxon word, Frigedæg, which means Frigg's Day. Frigg was the goddess of love in Norse mythology and, oddly, Scandinavians once considered Friday their luckiest day.

As for 13, some believe it unlucky because that's the number of persons at The Last Supper.

There is also a Norse fable about a banquet in Valhalla to which 12 gods were invited. But Loki, the spirit of evil, came uninvited as the 13th, and as a result, Bader, a favorite of the gods, was killed.

For those who believe this sort of thing, new enterprises shouldn't be started on Friday the 13th. But there are special taboos too: Don't pare your nails, turn your mattress, get married, visit the sick or have dinner with 12 other persons — superstition says the first or last to rise from a dinner of 13 will die within 12 months.

Ag interests can't untie tight Unicam pursestrings

By Don Walton

Even agriculture couldn't break the conservative budget constructed by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

A proposal to add nearly $600,000 for program improvements at the University of Nebraska's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources fell six votes short of approval on the floor of the Unicameral Thursday.

Normally, agricultural improvement funding has been able to carry the day on the legislative floor.

But the Unicameral appears determined this year to hold its budget package within the limits of current tax rates. So the amendment fell on a 19-19 vote.

More proposals to increase budget recommendations, including what could be a strong effort to hike state aid for technical community colleges, will confront the committee's higher education budget bill on Friday.

The measure, LB533, appropriates about $130 million in state tax funds for the operation of educational institutions in fiscal 1977-78.

The agricultural improvement proposal, offered by Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, had been strongly lobbied by representatives of the Ag-40 Group.

It would have funded improvements in a number of areas, including veterinary science, soil management and water movement, crop production, drought research, pesticide biochemistry and nutrition.

Kremer said those areas represent "critical needs for continued progress" of agriculture in Nebraska.

But a number of farmer senators declined to go along with the proposal in view of the tight budget requirements.

Appropriations Chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly, a farmer himself, said the additions could not be approved without "probably" triggering a sales or income tax rate hike unless corresponding cuts were made elsewhere.

Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood, a farmer, attempted to cut the addition to $45,120, but was turned down on an 11-18 vote.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue said agriculture has received generous funding from recent Legislatures, and Thursday's proposal would open the floodgates "to other budget additions."

Senators, however, did accept a committee proposal to add $168,000 for testing pseudorabies in swine at the Institute of Agriculture. Gov. J. James Exon had proposed a similar addition.

Rejected on an 11-12 count was Hemmingford Sen. Sam Cullen's effort to increase the NU Medical Center budget by $150,000 to help replace the loss of federal funds for its family practice program.

Here is the vote on the Kremer proposal:

For: Boughn, Carlsen, Clark, Cullen, Durs, George, Goodrich, Helmer, Kahle, Koch, Kremer, Lamb, Luedtke, Marsh, Maxey, Metz, Nichol, Schmitt, Swigart.

Against: Bereuter, Brennan, Burrows, Coode, Dworak, Fowler, Kelly, F. Lewis, R. Lewis, Marsh, Marvel, Moylan, Murphy, Newell, Reutzel, Rumery, Simon, Stoney, Warner.

Not Voting: Barnett, DeCamp, Keyes, Labedz.

Absent: Chambers, Fitzgerald, Hasebroock, Mills, Rasmussen, Savage, Venditte.

China sounds alarm to gear up industry

Tokyo (AP) — Predicting that a "big war" between the United States and the Soviet Union will break out at an early date, China's defense minister called for a massive drive to build up industry in the interior of China before it happens.

"The Soviet Union and the United States are locked in an increasingly fierce struggle for hegemony," Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying told a nationwide conference on industry in Peking May 9.

"A war will break out some day. We must be clearly aware of this situation, keep war in mind and get prepared for it, for a big war that will break out at an early date."

"We must race against time and work as quickly as possible so that we can build industry in the interior well before the outbreak of war."

"The building of industry in the interior is not merely a question of industrial distribution; it is a question of strategy that affects the whole situation."

Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, speaking after Yeh, repeated the warning of war and said "We must definitely be ready for war. We cannot afford to let time slip through our fingers as it waits for no one."

The texts of their speeches were made public Friday by Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency.

Home building ahead of record 1976 pace

By Gordon Winters

Star Staff Writer

Home building in Lincoln this spring is outdistancing the pace set last year in reaching an all-time record.

Industry spokesmen predict that the momentum built up during the first four months of 1977 will carry the city past last year's totals.

But industry representatives forecast a slowdown that will be evident next year as the availability of mortgage money begins to subside.

It usually goes in cycles, said Duane Vanderbeek, vice president of Duane Larson Construction Co. The farthest we can really see is about six months.

Vanderbeek said that home building activity might begin subsiding somewhat before the year is over. But still, he said, he expects the number of new homes built during the year to be 5,000 over 1976.

The number of building permits issued for the first four months of the year for single family homes including townhouses show 454 under construction.

That figure compares with 429 homes on which construction was begun during the first four months of last year.

I think it will continue through this spring into mid-summer, said Gary Elston, president of Bounty Homes.

Elston said, however, that he believes many of the homes going up now are being constructed on the builder's speculation that he will find a buyer for them.

If those homes do not sell quickly, Elston said, construction may slow this summer from the record-breaking pace.

Elston and others noted that experts predict that homebuilding will have a good year nationally, but Pat Taylor, president of the Lincoln Board of Realtors, noted that even so, some parts of the country will not contribute to that trend because of locally depressed economies.

Harlan Weingarten, vice president of the Lincoln Homebuilders Association and associated with the Hub Hail Construction Co., said that the healthy local economic picture is part of the reason for home building's fast start this year.

Weingarten said, however, that the Hub Hail firm is not planning to build many homes on speculation this year.

One reason for the representatives' predictions of a slowdown in 1978 are the indications that mortgage money is beginning to tighten up.

In the past few weeks several local lenders raised interest rates by a quarter percent to 8%, according to Taylor. She noted, however, that buyers can still find mortgage rates as low as 8½%.

Despite the home building activity, apartment construction continues to lag below record levels. This year permits for 274 apartments were issued, compared with 293 last year.

Building permits show quick start.

Nixon

When Brezhnev predicted that Egypt and Syria would soon attack if Israel did not withdraw, Nixon said he told the Soviet leader: "We will not let Israel go down the tube — or words to that effect."

Then, the former president related, when the Arabs attacked, the United States supported Israel with "everything that flies" and by filibustering against a cease-fire — at Israel's request — until Egypt and Syria were pushed back.

With Israel "on top," Egypt and then the Soviets proposed a joint American-Soviet force be sent to the region to keep the peace but were turned down by Nixon.

Recalling his conversation with Kissinger, the former president told Frost.

"Henry," I said, "This idea of the Russians having two Russian infantry divisions going to the Mid-East and putting themselves down in Egypt and Syria, and we send two American divisions into Israel in order to keep the peace there."

I said, "This is sheer madness. It may keep the peace but it runs into the possibility of a big-power conflict."

Nixon said Brezhnev then sent him an "ominous" message, saying the Russians would move "unilaterally into the situation" if the United States could not restrain Israel.

As a result, Nixon said, he sent a strong message to Brezhnev disapproving of any unilateral Soviet action.

When the Russians alerted troops and concentrated 85 ships, including one with "certain nuclear components" in the Black Sea and the eastern Mediterranean, Nixon said he ordered a third-level alert of U.S. military forces.

Israel, meanwhile, once it had gained the upper hand by crossing the Suez Canal, encircled the Egyptian third army and wanted to wipe it out, Nixon said.

"But if the Israelis had insisted on capturing and destroying the Egyptian third army, that would have brought about, I predicted, a coup or worse as far as Sadat was concerned," Nixon said.

The former president said the United States did not try to threaten Israel — "they'll never take it" — but instead applied reason and the Israelis relented.

Kissinger portrayed as doubter, genius

Washington (UPI) — Richard Nixon Thursday portrayed Henry Kissinger as a mercurial genius fascinated by the glitter and glamor of Hollywood and Georgetown, a man who never became his personal friend.

Nixon said that because of his "exceptional mind," Kissinger's moods plunged from heights to depths, and that on half a dozen occasions Kissinger offered to resign as secretary of state because he felt his usefulness had ended.

In his second interview with David Frost, Nixon made it clear he — not Kissinger — had been the driving force in U.S. foreign policy. And if he could have found the right person he never would have permitted Kissinger to be both secretary of state and national security adviser.

In fact, Nixon said, he had to caution Kissinger to "never look back" several times when the secretary expressed doubts over administration foreign policy.

Once, when Kissinger wondered if the wake of the Kent State killings whether the U.S. invasion of Cambodia "could have been a mistake," and "perhaps... we should get out a little sooner," Nixon admonished:

"Henry, we've done it. Remember Lot's wife. Never look back."

The discussions about Nixon's dealings with and feelings for Kissinger were among the highlights of the 90-minute broadcast. The former president clearly admired Kissinger's intellect, but also felt his secretary often was a cross to bear.

He said he had forgiven Kissinger for calling him "an odd person... an artificial person" in a private dinner conversation picked up by an open mike after Nixon had resigned.

"He didn't think to turn the microphone off," Nixon said. "But on the other hand I didn't turn it off either in the oval office on occasions, so I never held him for that."

But he said his family has not been so forgiving. "It drives my family right up the wall, and it's only because it bothers them that it would bother me at all," he said.

"I think that what we have to understand too, is that Henry likes to say outrageous things."

He said most people with "great intellectual ability couldn't care less about the so-called Hollywood celebrity set or celebrities of any kind. I mean they're basically interested in a person's brains."

"But Henry, on the other hand, was fascinated first by the celebrity set, and second, he liked being one himself."

"When the Georgetown hostesses had you in, they don't have you in there in order to feed ya' they have ya' there... for you to entertain their guests with some little tidbit that has happened that day."

And Nixon told Frost there were occasions when he simply ignored Kissinger. On May 8, 1972, shortly before going to a summit conference in Moscow, he ordered massive bombing of Hanoi, disregarding Kissinger's warning that the act might endanger the summit.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley, the number two woman tennis player in the world last year, gave birth Thursday to a seven-pound five-ounce girl, Kelly Inala Cawley.

Carter may visit Egypt

President Carter may visit Egypt next winter, Egyptian diplomatic sources said Thursday.

They said President Anwar Sadat extended an invitation to Carter when the two met in Washington last month. Carter accepted but no firm date for the visit has been set, they said.

Energy plan irks H. Ford

Henry Ford II said Thursday it would be a "disaster" for the American worker if President Carter's energy program included rebates on fuel-slingy imported cars.

Van Dyk takes post

Ted Van Dyk, a former journalist who advised Hubert Humphrey and Jimmy Carter in their presidential campaigns, Thursday was sworn in Washington by Vice President Walter Mondale as the third-ranking official of the State Department's Agency for International Development.

Van Dyk, 43, of Bellingham, Wash., will be AID's assistant administrator for intragovernmental and international affairs.

Britain's Prime Minister James Callaghan Thursday rejected charges of nepotism for naming his son-in-law ambassador to Washington.

The naming of Peter Jay, 40-year-old economic editor of the Times newspaper and a television broadcaster who is married to Callaghan's daughter, Margaret, touched off a storm inside and outside the ruling Labor party.

Sabotage rumored as Saudi fire is checked

Dharan, Saudi Arabia (AP)

— A mysterious explosion and pipeline fire in the heart of the world's greatest oil producing area was brought under control Thursday before it could cripple Saudi Arabia's oil production and export facilities, oil company officials said.

Though contained, the fire was still reported burning Thursday at the Abqaiq oil field in the desert about 35 miles from this oil center on the Persian Gulf.

The Arabian American Oil Co. — Aramco — which operates the field and most Saudi oil production, said one employee was killed and 13 others were hospitalized with burns and other injuries.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately determined. American diplomats in Saudi Arabia said the possibility of sabotage was being investigated, and a source on Capitol Hill in Washington said he understood Palestinian terrorists had set off the giant blaze with satchel explosives to protest the possibility of a negotiated settlement between Israel and the Arabs.

Carter shares light moment with reporters after conference.

Carter believes Nixon violated law

Washington (AP) — President Carter expressed a personal belief Thursday that Richard M. Nixon "did violate the law" in handling the Watergate scandal, but suggested the former president has convinced himself he was innocent.

Following a formal television-radio news conference, Carter was surrounded by reporters seeking his reaction to the initial Nixon interview on Watergate with David Frost, broadcast last week.

"It didn't change my opinion about President Nixon," said Carter, adding that he watched only "a small part" of the interview.

Carter amplified:

"I personally think that he did violate the law, and I think he did commit impeachable offenses. I think he doesn't think he did. . . I think he has rationalized in his own mind that he did all these things for the benefit of his staff members and so forth, and that he didn't have any criminal intent. I think he's mistaken."

Carter called the news conference, originally scheduled for the same evening hour as the second Nixon broadcast, to report on his six-day trip to London and Geneva.

The President said his participation in London summits with the leaders of other major democratic nations helped spark "a quiet sense that we have justified reasons for confidence."

He said the leaders he met with there came away with "a renewed spirit of hope and confidence" that they can compete successfully with the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies.

On other topics, Carter said:

— Israel continues to have a special relationship with the United States but, "I don't think that there can be any reasonable hope for a settlement of the Middle Eastern question . . . without a homeland for the Palestinians." But he said details on such a homeland should await further negotiations.

— FBI agents should not be immune from prosecution on charges of illegal entries carried out while they may have been on assignment. Carter, saying the agents merit "no special excuse," endorsed Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's handling of investigations into FBI activities that already have led to one federal court indictment.

The President also acknowledged he had sharp policy differences with AFL-CIO President George Meany but insisted that Meany's criticism "doesn't mean any rupture in our relationship."

Back in the international area, Carter said he could not set a target date for achieving full diplomatic relations with China because of problems in settling long-standing monetary claims between the two countries and difficulties over Taiwan.

He talked anew of a determination to balance the federal budget before his four-year term expires. And he said he hoped Congress will vote early next year to overhaul the welfare system. He acknowledged it would take two years after that to implement welfare revisions.

Carter defended his staff's salaries which recently were raised to as much as $56,000 a year from $44,600.

"The men and women on my staff are not overpaid," said Carter, adding that they work long hours at demanding tasks.

Style defended as 'restoring confidence'

Washington (AP) — Style is substance in the Carter White House, the President told a news conference on Thursday.

"To the extent I can have a good relationship with the people it helps, it makes it easier for me to be a good President," Carter said.

The President's comments during his nationally broadcast news conference came in response to questions about a staff memorandum which warned Carter a month before he took office not to make the mistake of substituting substance for style.

"When I took office I had not won an overwhelming victory, as you know, a couple of million votes," Carter said.

"In the last number of years," he went on "there had been a loss of confidence in our government, both in its integrity and in its ability. There had been a loss of confidence that the White House and the Congress could work together. So a major commitment to restore the confidence of the people in me."

Carter cited his frequent news conferences and his efforts to give ordinary citizens a greater feeling of access to the President, as ways he has tried to restore confidence.

"I think that the walk down Pennsylvania Avenue (after he was sworn in on the steps of the Capitol) . . . was a good indication that I trust Washington, that I didn't feel endangered," he said.

The memorandum about which Carter was questioned was written by Patrick H. Caddell, a political pollster and adviser to the Carter presidential campaign organization.

The memo also warned Carter that his greatest political threat could come from within his own party, particularly from California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. who was described by Caddell as "sneaky and ambitious."

Earlier Carter had been asked about recent criticism of his domestic priorities by Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the party's 1972 presidential nominee and a prominent voice in its liberal wing.

"I don't see either McGovern or Gov. Brown as an adversary or threat," Carter replied. "I feel quite secure in my position," he added with the smile of a politician who knows that incumbent Presidents with favorable ratings in public opinion polls have every reason to feel politically secure from threats within their own party.

McGovern's criticism expressed the discomfort of some liberals that Carter might be willing to sacrifice traditional Democratic social goals to his desire to balance the budget. Carter said he does not feel McGovern's position was justified and "I am glad the criticism was confined to one person."

When asked whether he felt he was in danger of losing the support of liberals, Carter replied, "There's always that danger. I think one characteristic of liberals is that they are very difficult to please . . . If they get 95 per cent of what they want, they only remember the other 5 per cent."

Panama Canal talks break unexpectedly

Washington (AP) — Panama Canal treaty talks have recessed unexpectedly to allow Panamanian negotiators to fly home for consultations on new developments, the State Department reported Thursday.

The decision to break off the meeting came after a two-hour session Wednesday when chief Panamanian negotiator Romulo Escobar Betancourt decided to fly home.

State Department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown said the talks, which began Monday, will resume "in the next few days."

He declined to describe the development which Escobar suddenly returned to discuss with Panamanian strong man Gen. Omar Torrijos.

However, Brown said the Wednesday talks "were cordial and comprehensive" and the United States "is encouraged by the progress."

Panamanian sources declined to attach significance to the decision to recess the talks.

They said it has been routine practice in previous negotiating sessions for the two sides to recess in order to consult with their respective governments.

In describing Escobar's return, Brown added that "there was an exchange of ideas which the Panamanian negotiators wanted to discuss personally" with Torrijos.

The main issues remaining in signing a new treaty deal with guaranteeing the neutrality and access to the waterway, the disposition of territory now held by the United States and the compensation to be paid Panama.

Talks for a treaty to replace the original accord signed in 1903 have been held intermittently for nearly 10 years.

Panama has demanded eventual jurisdiction over the Canal Zone and the canal as well. The United States has insisted on a new treaty that will assure that the canal will remain open to all nations on a nondiscriminatory basis once Panama gains control.

Panama has resisted any proposals which would in any way limit its jurisdiction over the canal.

Cuba, Vietnam trade opposed by House

Washington (UPI) — The House Thursday reaffirmed its opposition to U.S. trade with Cuba or Vietnam but passed a $1.7 billion foreign aid bill which lifts "outdated restrictions" prohibiting food aid to other nations trading with Havana and Hanoi.

The House legislation also removed some restrictions on aid to Egypt, and added limitations on help to countries violating human rights.

The vote was 252 to 158.

The legislation now goes to the Senate, where it directly conflicts with a move by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., to remove bans on U.S. trade with Cuba and Vietnam.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, told members the legislation lifts "outdated restrictions against food aid to countries trading with Cuba or Vietnam" but "in no way lifts any restriction against U.S. trade or aid to Hanoi or Havana."

However the House adopted an amendment by Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, specifically reaffirming the bans.

"There is within the Senate a very determined effort to remove prohibitions against trade and aid to Cuba and Vietnam," Ashbrook said. "We should not sit back in the House and let the senior senator from South Dakota be spokesman on foreign policy."

The legislation prohibits food aid "to countries engaged in a consistent pattern of gross violations in internationally recognized human rights, unless the aid directly benefits needy people."

Despite strong opposition from tobacco-producing states, the House passed an amendment by Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Colo., eliminating $24 million in tobacco exports from the program.

"This is a commodity which the federal government has warned time and again is dangerous to the health of our public," Johnson said. "It seems to me it would be a good thing to give to our enemies instead of giving it to Zaire, Pakistan, India, the Philippines and Bangladesh."

Geography, sex count as political factors

If it wasn't obvious before — and it should have been — southeast Lincoln is where elections can be won or lost in this city. More registered voters live in that quadrant and a greater percentage of them vote than elsewhere in Lincoln.

His strength in southeast Lincoln was all Joe Hampton needed last week to finish first in the City Council election. Hampton finished third in the southwest quadrant and out of the money in the northwest and northeast. Leo Scherer more than doubled his primary election vote total in the southeast precincts (as he did in his home northeast quadrant) to come in second to Hampton in the general. Scherer finished fourth in the primary. And Sue Bailey, who had led in the northeast, northwest and southwest parts of Lincoln in the primary, again finished out of the money in the southeast, where she couldn't gain enough ground to retain her council seat. The southeast in effect defeated Mrs. Bailey.

That sector did not have a dramatic impact on the Civic Center bond issue vote, however. The rejected bond issue found slim favor in the southeast and southwest, was defeated by a slim margin in the northwest and was buried, relatively speaking, in northeast Lincoln.

In all, however, southeast Lincoln carries the weight. The preponderant number of voters live there, and what's more, they turn out.

There has to be a message there for those interested in future city races.

A backlash against women officeholders/candidates can be perceived in this area. Indeed, it probably exists across the nation.

There are, of course, other specific factors leading to the outcome of individual election races which don't relate to gender. But the sex of the candidate or officeholder is indisputably one factor.

Betty Abbott lost her bid to become mayor of Omaha this week and she submitted that the fact that she is a woman had something to do with it. Hers was not a sour grapes reaction. A poll commissioned before the election showed almost a fourth of those questioned saying they couldn't vote for a woman. The Omaha World-Herald found more people at the polling places Tuesday who said they wouldn't vote for Abbott because she is a woman than those who said her sex was a positive factor.

Locally, Sen. Shirley Marsh was successful in her bid for re-election last year and so was County Commissioner Jan Gauger. But the latter had a difficult time in the primary before winning re-election over a little-known opponent. Public Service Commission candidate Joyce Durand was defeated last year. Sue Bailey lost her seat on the Lincoln City Council this spring. And Mayor Helen Boosalis' standing with the public is said to have suffered since her election two years ago.

These sentiments or election results are not straight-out judgments on competence or performance. The testing of opinion in Omaha justifies that assumption.

It is, rather, partially a sexist phenomenon, rooted less in objectivity and more in old fears and prejudices.

Is ERA a bio-intellectual mistake?

Washington — Can science stop the Equal Rights Amendment where politics has thus far failed?

Maybe so. Strident advocacy is already clouding the amendment's ratification prospects, but the most negative development of all may be taking shape in scientific research and compilation of bio-intellectual differences between men and women significant enough to cast doubt on ERA's strict language and vocational equality implications.

If I were an anti-ERA strategist, I would distribute writer Kenneth Lamott's article "Why Men and Women Think Differently" (in the May 1977 issue of Horizon) to every legislator in every state still hanging fire on ERA ratification. At very least, the scientific findings described therein provide an important caveat to ERA arguments. They may even provide a critical indirect case against ratification.

Here's Lamott's own caption and capsule of the emerging thrust of scientific thinking on sexual inequality: "It's not only social conditioning, after all. New research shows that the brains of males and females are not alike and are intended to perform in different ways."

Ironically for the ultra-feminist cause, some of the most important bio-intellectual research and compilation have been done by women. Eleanor Emmons Maccoby, who heads the department of psychology at Stanford University, and her colleague, Carol Jacklin, have read and annotated some 1,700 studies on psychological, behavioral and intellectual disparities between men and women. Overall, they found some "fairly well established" differences, notably that girls excel in verbal ability while boys excel in visual-spatial and mathematical ability. Girls' thinking, as compared with that of boys, is "less analytic, more global, and more persevering." Ms. Maccoby goes on to say that such thinking is not the sort that leads to high-level intellectual productivity, especially in science.

English psychologist Corinne Hutt agrees: "It is clear," she writes, "that where reasoning or the logical manipulation of concepts or relationships are concerned, males are superior, irrespective of the content of the problem, i.e., numbers, words, patterns."

Now for the second point. Apparently these differences are hereditary and sex-linked. A recent study of 167 suburban families by two U.S. investigators, R. D. Bock of the University of Chicago and Donald Kolakowski of the University of Connecticut, found that spatial ability is carried by a recessive, sex-linked gene. Men and women receive this trait in different proportions — about 50% of men get it, about 25% of women. There is also evidence that brain development is different in boys and girls — specialized spatial capacity emerges more quickly in boys, verbal capacity advances more rapidly in the young female brain.

And heredity may be better supplemented by chemistry than by society, it appears. Surveys show that two hormones — the male hormone androgen and the pregnancy hormone progesterin (which can cause female fetuses to develop male organs) — produce an increase in intelligence and academic performance. In this latter respect, male hormones provide vocational drive. Laboratory experiments — with rats, monkeys and others — show that increased androgens mean increased aggressiveness.

Restrained interpretation is clearly in order. Speaking to a Paris scientific meeting last autumn, psychologist Eleanor Maccoby urged that no doors of opportunity be closed to women on the basis of findings about the different intellectual constitutions of the two sexes. True, but keeping open doors of opportunity and mandating vocational equality are very different approaches indeed, and ERA's undifferentiating legal sweep ignores what may be critical bio-intellectual distinctions. What about engineering jobs? What about the army? Vocational equality mandates may be contrary to both bio-intellectuality and the national interest. Wouldn't it be a good idea for co-ordinated legal-biological research before any states take further action on the ERA?

Farm cash picture grim

It is an alarming prospect:

— Ten percent of the agricultural land in the nation will change hands by the end of this crop year if prices don't improve.

— Many young farmers, faced with heavy outlays for land and equipment, will go under unless they can get help from their parents or other non-institutional sources.

These grim assessments of the farm economic picture were generally agreed upon by a panel of bankers from all over the nation which met in Omaha this week.

The discussion and briefing was sponsored by the American Bankers Association for agricultural journalists in this region.

The bankers noted the combination of depressed prices, high overhead (rent, fertilizer, fuel, machinery), accelerating land prices and drought which has created a serious cash flow problem on the nation's farms. Conversely, they noted that ever-higher land values are the source of credit allowing many farmers to continue in operation, and they see bright spots in the bank deposit picture.

Nevertheless, the outlook nationwide for some specialty farmers, cattlemen, wheat farmers and young operators is grim unless prices and the weather take a turn for the better. Another year of negative cash flow is forecast.

The bankers, who don't want to sell out their customers, and political leaders — such as Nebraska Gov. Jim Exon, who has been alerting Washington to the problem for some time now — are aware of the extent of the farm cash-credit crisis.

There is just so much the lending institutions and government can do to help farmers ride out the price and weather down cycles, however. Farmers must help themselves hang tough.

As bankers have been politely trying to point out, farmers are great producers, but some are not as good in the managing and marketing departments.

Wiser, more prudent managing of their business affairs and marketing of their produce may mean the ability to make those interest payments — and survive.

The genie of tragedy

Jim Bishop

New York — Alcohol remains the world's great illusionist. Remove the cork and a genie will appear to offer laughter, song and horror. Liquor has cost more jobs, broken more homes and killed more people than all the wars of history.

Yet it is a friendly drug. It can warm old bones, lift tired hearts and make friends of strangers. It can create an appetite, dull an affront, resurrect a sentimental memory. Alcohol is good, and very, very bad.

Years ago Doubleday asked me to write a biography of an alcoholic. William Wister of Germantown, Pennsylvania. He was a "cured" boozier, a doctor of alcoholics. He taught a great deal about drinking, but I couldn't differentiate between a drunk and an alcoholic.

Wister had been sober many years. His wife left him. He knocked the neck off a bottle on the edge of a kitchen sink and drank the liquor and the shards. He died in Polyclinic Hospital.

The compulsion to drink remains a mystery. "There are times," Wister said, "when one is too much and a hundred are not enough." Some physicians believe that five per cent of all drinkers have an allergy to alcohol. The more they drink, the worse they feel, the more they drink.

My old man drank at times. He missed two days' work in 25 years on the police force. I have seen Jackie Gleason, after a night of revelry, stand in the wings with shaking hands and refuse a cool beer before going on.

The Duke of Windsor was an alcoholic. So was Mickey Walker, pug, and Walter Hagen, golfer. Theodore Dreiser, writer, Sherwood Anderson, dramatist, Isadora Duncan, dancer, Edna St. Vincent Millay, poet.

F. Scott Fitzgerald wrote: "In the dark night of the soul, it is always 3 o'clock in the morning." He died at 44.

Sinclair Lewis a noble writer, consumed a quart of brandy each day. Of Lewis it was said: "At seven in the morning you couldn't tell whether he was having his first drink of the day or his last of the night."

A great actor, John Barrymore, ended his life in 1942 dazed confused trying to remember what could not be recalled. On a recent broadcast a parody of Barrymore. He earned millions. When he died, auctioneers sold his furniture and clothes to pay his debts.

Hart Crane, an early American author, cured his drinking at midnight. He was on a ship returning from Cuba. He jumped overboard. At age 40 Jack London was the highest paid author in America. "I intend to continue to drink," he wrote, "but more skillfully, more discreetly."

London tried to kill his writhing, laughing devils, but they refused to die. He took an overdose of drugs in northern California and buried them and himself.

Henry practically lived in Jack's Saloon, Sixth Avenue and 42nd Street, New York. He hated to write. On deadline he asked the bartender for a paper bag and a pencil. He wrote classics. He died staggering the streets of New York, too proud to beg for a drink.

I lost two brothers-in-law and three boyhood friends to alcoholism. The more I study the subject, the less I know. As a drug it is a depressant, even though drunks will argue that alcohol is euphoric. It releases inhibitions, distorts judgment and does its finest work on persons who are shy, introverted or insecure.

Dylan Thomas was a youngish Welsh poet of great promise. Within himself, he lacked faith in his talent and appearance. John Brinn wrote of him: "Here he was, sadly crumpled in drunken exhaustion, black-tongued and tipsy... unable to think for himself or to face himself or to face for what they were the insatiable attentions that could only destroy him."

Writers live on their thoughts and words and judgments. Too many of them jog their minds into gear with a few drinks. No jog, no jog. Some of the greatest stories I ever heard were not written by newspapermen; they were told at Toots Shor's bar. The boozers whose work I knew attained an eloquence denied to the written word.

Inside the sodden soul of the drunkard is another thing: a fear of night. Dylan expressed it well, just before he died at age 39.

"Do not go gentle into that good night. Rage, rage against the dying of the light!"

On their way

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with great interest Star Reporter Linda Olig's interview with the Malone Center counselor, Vaughn Robertson, in the May 4 issue.

Ms. Olig picks up Mr. Robertson's comments on how much he is doing for troubled youth — black, white, Chicano, et al — and then quotes him as saying Lincoln youth "most definitely" have problems. "I can see where they're going and they're going nowhere."

Most reasonable parents would agree that our local youths have problems, but I suspect they would disagree with the rather strange assessment that our youth are "going nowhere."

It may seem strange to Mr. Robertson, coming from a state where mouths are as big as boundaries (Texas) that quite a few Lincoln youths managed to "go somewhere" long before he arrived on the scene.

I intend nothing racist when I say that Lincoln does not need a young black man or a young white man or a young brown man or a young any-color man to come to town and tell us our kids are a bunch of losers.

Long before Mr. Robertson was born, I was growing up in Lincoln's famed "South Russian Bottom" which was just about as tough as any neighborhood to be found anywhere in Nebraska or Texas. It was a poor but proud and respectable working-class neighborhood composed of German-Russians, Mexicans, blacks and Indians. These Americans of mixed ancestry got along admirably and friendships were formed that last to this day.

I remember one family that had only dirt for a floor in their home. Talk about underprivileged! Still, these people didn't even know they were poor until they grew up and got out into the world and heard Washington politicians tell them how bad off they were. That's not ignorance, that's the sign of self-reliant people who shunned welfare and "do-gooders" who wanted to "save them" from themselves.

There used to be a prominent

Today's Mail

Within one year of the ratification date of that treaty, the Pawnee were bound to an agreement that they would move to Oklahoma completely at their own expense, with no aid from the government.

For some months, the Indian community of Nebraska has observed the legislators' struggle to find a befitting name for the new state office building. Many people, proud of Nebraska's Indian heritage, believe that this stately building should reflect that pride and honor for the past.

Rather than name such a building in the memory of some or another honorable politician, it would be fitting that the offices of the state government be named for the people who first saw and loved the beauty of our peaceful state.

Let's name the new state office building in such a way that we may honor the Indian people of Nebraska... past, present, and future generations.

Pawnee history

Lincoln, Neb.

In 1833 the United States government composed a unilaterally written treaty which was signed with the Pawnee Indians. For many years these people had inhabited the lands of what we now call Nebraska. From the Missouri west to the Republican River, all Pawnee land south of the Platte River was ceded to the federal government. The Pawnee were then removed onto the Teton Sioux hunting grounds north of the great Platte River. Sioux and Pawnee were forced to battle for control of the land.

Being sedentary people, the Pawnee were soon the focus of much Christianizing activity. They were taught the virtues of reading and writing and education. By 1857, Pawnee lands were renamed Nebraska Territory, the name chosen from the Pawnee vision of the Platte as "flat water."

The 1857 treaty stipulated that, along with the previous cession of Pawnee lands, the people would agree to live on reservations situated near present-day Columbus, Nebraska. According to the treaty, they had also agreed to trade their Nebraska reservations for lands located in Oklahoma Indian Territory.

At his heels

Lincoln, Neb.

Never since the days of Patrick Henry has there been such a flood of oratory as the Nixon interview produced. Patrick Henry, Benjamin Franklin and Winston, combined, pale into insignificance.

At last Mr. Nixon has found a way to serve his country! Politicians, newsmen, commentators are having a field day!

I thought Senator Sam Irvin had reached his apex when on the Watergate committee he said: "Watergate is the worst thing that has ever happened to this country." And Mr. Nixon's interview causes him more suffering!

The Civil War, two world wars, the Cuban fiasco and other conflicts took thousands of lives, besides the huge cost in materials, but Senator Sam just seems to have lost his perspective.

As to the next interviews, all I can say is, the pack is anticipating the kill and are licking their chops hoping to hear Mr. Nixon say: "Lay on, McDuff, and damned be him that first cries, 'Hold! Enough!'"

FAIR-MINDED AMERICAN

Tax distribution

Lincoln, Neb.

I strongly disagree with The Star editorial on May 7 which supported new gas taxes used for general government funding, on the grounds that tariffs and other special purpose taxes are also generally funding.

Income and sales taxes are collected from a broad range of taxpayers regardless of how they pursue their lives and occupations. These taxes reflect as fairly as possible each person's or company's share in the whole economy and are the Everyone was a winner at the Special Olympics track meet held recently at East High. There were 133 special athletes ranging in age from eight to 34 who participated in five events to qualify for the state meet held at Wayne College May 20-21. The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat were not evident at this meet, as every athlete won no matter where he finished, because he did finish. They were participants in sharing the excitement and enjoyment of true sport.

Computer net loses 2nd bank

Omaha (AP) — First National Bank of Omaha has become the second major bank to withdraw from the statewide electronic banking network because of U.S. Justice Department objections to the network.

An official of the Nebraska Electronic Transfer System said Thursday First National's move will not deter efforts to put the network into operation by late summer.

Omaha National, the state's largest bank, withdrew from the system last month because officials said the firm didn't want to become involved in a suit by the U.S. Justice Department.

The department told NETS in March that the system may violate antitrust laws because of its "potential anticompetitive effects."

Elias Elhopoulos, vice president of operations for First National, said Thursday the bank's legal council advised the withdrawal because of the Justice Department's objections.

He said First National would rejoin the network if changes can be made to overcome those objections.

Meanwhile, he said, the bank will continue to meet its current financial commitments to the system. About 300 Nebraska banks have pledged $13 million for development of NETS' central computer system.

The network would allow customers of any bank hooked into the central computer to deposit and withdraw funds using computer terminals throughout the state.

A major objection of the Justice Department was that the network would hinder competition because it would discourage individual banks from developing their own electronic systems.

First National currently operates its own electronic system with 19 terminals in the Omaha area.

NETS Executive Director James Bartel said the three other major Nebraska banks involved in the system have not indicated plans to withdraw. They are United States National of Omaha, First National of Lincoln and the National Bank of Commerce of Lincoln.

Bartel said negotiations are progressing with the Justice Department to find ways to overcome the objections, but the NETS board hasn't decided on any specific change in the system yet.

Valerie Wycoff ... finished in 3 years

Wesleyan to graduate coed, 19

Valerie Wycoff of Lexington will have just turned 19 years old when she receives her baccalaureate degree Sunday at Nebraska Wesleyan University's 88th annual commencement.

The ninth member of her family to receive a degree from NWU, Ms. Wycoff finished her college work in three years. She enrolled in the university after her junior year in high school and received her high school diploma after her first year of college.

Although the theatre arts major said she hopes to perform in musical theatre, her immediate plans are to spend next year in New Zealand under the International Youth Exchange Program.

State Digest

Another store robbed

Grand Island (UPI) — A Grand Island liquor store was robbed of an undetermined amount of money Wednesday night by a man wearing a stocking over his head. Authorities were unsure whether the robber was armed. Asst. Police Chief Dwight Belke said the clerk at the Cap and Cork liquor store told police the robber had "something black in his hand." Police said several armed robberies have occurred in the past few months in Grand Island.

Tree meetings slated

The Nebraska Highway Commission and Nebraska Department of Roads have scheduled public meetings this month to outline the effect of highway improvement projects on trees. The meetings will be held May 23 in Columbus and May 24 in Laurel.

Cavanaugh appointed

Omaha (UPI) — Mayor-elect Al Veys, holding court in his South Omaha grocery store, tabbed James Cavanaugh, 27, as his first administrative appointee. The brother of Rep. John Cavanaugh, D-Neb., the younger Cavanaugh will serve as Veys assistant on federal grants.

Health budget goes up 12%

Grand Island (UPI) — Ed Edwards, director of the Grand Island-Hall County Health Department, said his 1977-78 budget is "inflationary, but necessary." The health board approved a budget of nearly $190,000, up 12% from this year's budget. Edwards said the major increases will result from a 6.5% salary increase and an expansion of preventive health programs throughout the county.

KGFV 50 years old

Kearney (AP) — Radio Station KGFV will host an open house through Saturday in observance of its 50th anniversary and of National Radio Month. KGFV first went on the air in Ravenna with a power of 10 watts. In 1931 the license was transferred to Central Nebraska Broadcasting Corp. and the station was moved to Kearney. Former employees include Floyd Kalber, NBC newscaster, and

"Charlie Tuna" Art Ferguson of KJL in Los Angeles.

Compromise expected

Hastings (AP) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said Thursday she expects the House to compromise on the minimum wage bill. Speaking by telephone from Washington to the Hastings Area Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Smith said she anticipates a compromise on the $2.50 minimum wage President Carter has proposed and the $3 sought by labor; "because labor doesn't have the clout it used to have."

Budget Sets Record

Fremont (AP) — Trustees of Midland Lutheran College have adopted a record budget of $3,413,970 for 1977-78. The trustees also have approved plans and accepted a construction bid for a new maintenance building, made possible by the Centennial Development Campaign. New members of the college board are Deryl F. Hammann, Omaha attorney, and Edward T. Robinson Jr. of Waterloo, president of Robinson Seed Co.

Lincolnite appointed to council post

Robert Guenzel of Lincoln was made chairman of the executive committee of the Council on Foundations at the organization's annual conference in St. Louis.

The council, a national non-profit organization based in New York, provides advisory and consulting services for about 800 members and serves as a clearing house and spokesman for philanthropic foundations.

Guenzel is a past president of the Lincoln Foundation and has served on its board for more than 15 years. He has had experience in negotiating for foundations with the Senate Finance Committee, the Treasury Department and the Internal Revenue Service.

The conference was open only to grant makers — foundation trustees, officers, staff members and other official representatives. Lincoln Foundation president John Frey was among those attending.

Hotel owners sought to answer fire charges

Omaha (AP) — A warrant was issued two weeks ago for the arrest of the owners of a condemned downtown hotel in which a transient died in a fire early Thursday. Fire Chief Vernon Van Scoy said

Van Scoy said the warrant charges non-compliance with fire department orders to secure the debris-littered, 112-room Hamilton Hotel, which was closed in December after a fire in which eight persons were injured.

"The trouble is," he said, "we don't really know who owns the building. No one wants to claim it."

Registered letters sent to a husband and wife who ran the hotel have been returned marked "address unknown," Van Scoy said.

The unidentified transient died of smoke inhalation, and another man, identified as John Fletcher, 47, of Massena, Iowa, was hospitalized as a result of the fire. Ten other men, all of them apparently transients who were sleeping in the closed hotel, escaped unharmed.

Fire inspectors have "shooed out" transients found inside the hotel several times since December, fire department chief arson investigator Vernon Trapp said.

Van Scoy said he will ask the state fire marshal's office to take emergency action to condemn and demolish the hotel.

He said he asked two weeks ago that condemnation proceedings be started on the hotel, which Mayor Robert Cunningham ordered closed after the third multi-alarm fire since 1975.

The warrant was issued at about the same time, Van Scoy said.

Van Scoy said the hotel was run by Douglas and Renee Dieterich. Authorities said they have questioned Omaha businessman George Nahas, who has said he holds the mortgage on the Hamilton. But the authorities said no action was taken.

Vernon Trapp, chief arson investigator for the fire department, said the identity of the dead man was being sought. He said none of the other men in the hotel at the time knew the man's name.

The dead man had $4.62 cents in his pocket, Trapp said.

Trapp said firemen found the dead man on the floor of what had been the lobby. Fletcher was found on a mattress-covered floor of a small room just off the lobby, Trapp said. Fletcher was not breathing when found, but was revived by fireman Frank Ponfara, who administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Jail standards proposal near

Chadron (UPI) — A final proposal setting new minimum standards for jails across Nebraska may be submitted to the attorney general's office by mid-June, a state Corrections Department official said Thursday.

Robert Cote, administrator of jail standards, said the proposal is in its seventh draft and will be rewritten and edited again before it is submitted to the attorney general for approval.

Cote, who Thursday completed a series of 10 public hearings around the state on the proposed jail standards, told Chadron and northwest Nebraska area officials that the department has no intention of forcing counties to close jails or of mandating changes that will increase county correctional costs.

He said the proposed new minimums will give the department authority to grant prior approval to remodel existing jails or to construct new facilities. He said the authority is similar to that granted the state Health Department and the state Fire Marshal's Office.

After the attorney general has approved the new minimum jail standards, Cote said, each county will be asked to participate in developing jail standards to fit local needs.

Remarks said invalidated by old figures

Associated Press
The executive director of the American Association of Colleges and Universities used three-year-old statistics when he criticized Nebraska's spending for higher education recently, Jon Oberg, principal analyst of the State Budget Office said Thursday.

In a letter to association Director Allan Ostar Oberg said comments by Ostar to Wayne State College graduates earlier this month were "erroneous misleading outdated, unreliable, invalid and completely off-base."

Oberg said "The credibility of your organization which is supported in part by Nebraska taxpayers, has not been enhanced by your comments."

Ostar of Washington, D.C., told Wayne State graduates that Nebraska spends 31% less than it did in 1970 for higher education, adjusting for inflation. That put Nebraska at the bottom of Midwestern states and 42nd in the nation in education spending, he said.

Oberg said in the letter that Ostar's statistics "apparently come from a publication of the Education Commission of the States. These statistics are now almost three years old."

He said that since the statistics were published, "Nebraska has greatly increased its tax support for higher education." He said reports of the increases have been "widely circulated."

"Over both the past two- and ten-year periods," Oberg said, Nebraska "has been in the top five states in the country in increasing tax support for higher education."

Nebraska now ranks 11th in the nation in tax support per capita, he said, and predicted that next year it would be among the top ten.

Oberg also criticized Ostar for measuring state expenditures for higher education by comparing them with personal income, and for making the remarks at Wayne State, which he said has not increased tuition in several years and thus receives an increasing proportion of state aid.

Measuring aid against personal income, he said, "is of questionable validity in any agricultural state," where individual incomes fluctuate.

Ostar was not available for comment.

Veys credited with helping out sick old woman

Omaha (AP) — The "other woman" in Al Veys' life was soot covered and frostbitten when Omaha's mayor-elect met her.

"She never wanted for anything after Al came along," said Betty Bartunek of Omaha, who first discovered Annie Polan in a shack several years ago and brought her home for a bath and haircut.

"You don't hear of things like that anymore. She looked like she hadn't had a bath in years. And she was freezing," Mrs. Bartunek recalled.

Annie, who was in her 80s, wouldn't let go of a handkerchief containing about $1,700. She said she was saving the money for her funeral.

After calls to social agencies didn't help, Mrs. Bartunek called Veys. "He came to her home and talked to the woman, convincing her to put the money in a bank escrow."

Veys got her admitted to County Hospital and later into nursing homes.

"I thought she needed some family love. I volunteered and became her legal guardian," said Veys, who regularly took his wife and children to visit Annie.

"He was like a blessing from heaven for her," Mrs. Bartunek said. "She worshipped Al."

Veys took care of Annie's incidental needs and Social Security checks provided further help. Shortly after the woman was found, Mrs. Bartunek said, Veys told her to buy clothes and whatever else was needed for Annie and to charge it to his account at a South Omaha store.

When Annie Polan died last spring, the Veys and Bartunek families and a few neighbors attended the funeral.

Several hundred dollars were left in Annie's account after the funeral, Veys said he wrote a check to the county for that amount. "The money wasn't mine," he said.

Prasch proposes using schools for day care

As school populations decline, school administrators have quit begging for more classrooms and have started worrying about what to do with classrooms that are not being used.

One possible solution to this problem is also the solution to another: the growing need for day-care services.

Lincoln Public Schools Superintendent

John Prasch has approached the county's Child Care Advisory Committee with a proposal for using public school buildings as day-care centers.

In meetings to be held between the School Board and the County Board in the near future, Prasch says he hopes to explore ways of funding a joint child-care project and the legality of such cooperation.

Earlier proposals of this nature involved the use of school buildings for non-school purposes during evenings and weekends, when school is not in session.

Now we're talking about all-day care centers in the schools," said commissioner Jan Gauger.

A preliminary discussion of the proposal is scheduled for 11 a.m. Tuesday in the county commissioners' hearing room in the County-City Building.

A meeting between the entire School Board and the County Board will be set for sometime in June, according to Human Services Director Bob Clark.

Omaha annexation case will go to court in July

Omaha (AP) — Arguments over whether the City of Omaha can properly annex the Riverfront Industrial Park will be heard in District Court this summer.

Attorneys for the city and for Dan Dolan, who filed a taxpayer's suit opposing the annexation, agreed Thursday to continue a restraining order issued April 29 by District Court Judge Theodore J. Richling.

The attorneys agreed to wait and argue the merits of the case rather than conducting procedural arguments Thursday.

Richling said arguments can be heard in July. He did not set a date.

Group suspends promotional ads

Sioux Falls, S.D. (AP) — The Old West Commission has suspended major portions of its $475,000 campaign to promote the states of Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas in foreign countries.

The governors of these states voted Thursday to support a resolution which provided that "no further elements of the program should be pursued without express authorization by the governors."

The resolution was passed with no major public discussion or dissent.

Three portions of the program were allowed to continue unhindered. They include an investment dinner in Toronto, an export directory and pursuit of a trade lead dissemination program to help exporters.

The program came to regional attention when ads appeared in the London Times boasting the energy-rich lands of the five affected states. Link and Montana Gov. Thomas Judge called the advertisements misleading, saying they gave the impression that the area had unlimited energy potential for industrial expansion.

The governors had approved the general campaign but had not seen the specific ads.

The reassessment was to include a report by the commission's Industrial Development advisory committee itemizing specific measures of performance of the program to date, a report on the potential for conflicts between state policies and authorized portions of the program, and a Department of Commerce review of the overall program.

The governors also went on record as opposing airline deregulation. They said it would hurt air service to smaller communities in their states.

The resolution followed a proposal that the Old West Commission obtain 11 airplanes for a lease-purchase program to provide air service to those cities.

However, South Dakota Gov. Richard Kneip said the timing of the lease-purchase plan was wrong and approval of such a program might be interpreted in Congress as support of deregulation.

"In effect, it is signaling the Congress that we, on our own, are willing to provide it (air service)," said Kneip. "We could do this at a later time."

Action on the plan was deferred, but the governors asked the details of the project be submitted to their congressional delegations and the airline industry for recommendation and comments.

The lease-purchase program was presented by Rudy Perzalez, Nebraska director of aeronautics.

He said the Old West Regional Commission could purchase the 19 passenger planes at a cost of $12.7 million and offer them to commuter airlines, which could lease the craft until they were paid for.

"The problem is, commuter airlines can't get the money," Perzalez said. "Actually, we are helping a private industry to purchase the aircraft."

State Patrol wins national safety award

The Nebraska State Patrol has won the national award in the state police division of the National Fleet Safety Contest, Patrol Supt. C.P. Karthauser announced Thursday.

He was notified of the award by Vincent L. Tofany, president of the National Safety Council.

Karthauser credited the professional driving habits and dedication of his officers for the recognition.

'Severely handicapped need more'

Grand Island (UPI) — A state rehabilitation official says more people with severe handicaps will have to be served by state and local programs.

Dr. Jason Andrew of Lincoln, director of the State Rehabilitation Program, made the comment Wednesday night during the 10th annual Central Nebraska Goodwill Industries banquet here.

Federal legislation passed in 1973 finally has taken effect, meaning more services will have to be provided by agencies such as Goodwill, Andrew said.

About half the clients served by the state now fall into the severely disabled category, about double the percentage of severely disabled in programs before 1973, Andrew said.

He praised Central Nebraska Goodwill Industries for becoming the first program in the state accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

Cost of alterations may top $2 million

Associated Press

New federal requirements for building alterations to aid the handicapped could cost the University of Nebraska-Lincoln $2 million or more, UNL officials say.

The university has been improving access to buildings for the handicapped by installing ramps and elevators in new and recently remodeled buildings. Some buildings are also equipped with special toilets and visual fire warnings.

But there still are barriers in older buildings, said Miles Tommeraaen, vice chancellor for business and finance, and Tom Nycum, assistant physical plant director.

The new regulations say an entire building need not be equipped for the handicapped but that classrooms and laboratories must be accessible, even if it requires moving a lab to the ground floor.

"The potential bill for this kind of thing is in the millions," Tommeraaen said. "I don't see anybody giving us that kind of money right now."

He said it would be unfair to handicapped students to put them in a class which does not meet their academic needs just because it is accessible.

The regulations also classify drug users and alcoholics as handicapped. The vice chancellor said the cost of unemployment pay, special courses or other aid for them is unknown.

The Board of Regents has revised its employment policy to state that the university and its subcontractors will not discriminate in hiring because of handicaps.

Woman pleads guilty to murder near Sidney

Sidney (UPI) — Jacquelin Simpson Brick, 23, Thursday pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder in the Nov. 12, 1976, shooting death of Fred Skiba.

Skiba's body was found one-half mile west of the Sidney interchange on Interstate 80. He was a construction worker en route from Omaha to a job in Reno, Nev.

Ms. Brick appeared before Judge John D. Knapp, who accepted her plea. The charge carries a sentence of from 10 years to life in prison.

No date for sentencing was set. Bond had been set at $100,000 and Ms. Brick was returned to the Cheyenne County jail.

County Atty. Thomas Sonntag refused to comment on the case pending the trial of Ms. Brick's brother, Jerry Simpson, who is charged with robbery and first degree murder.

Ms. Brick originally was charged with robbery and first degree murder.

Simpson and Ms. Brick are from the Los Angeles, Calif., area.

Sugar plant employees may be eligible for aid

Cheyenne, Wyo. (AP) — A report prepared by the U.S. Labor Department says some workers laid off from sugar beet processing plants may be eligible to apply for trade adjustment assistance.

The report will determine the number of sugar workers who are eligible for assistance.

Thone amendment puts gasohol program closer

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

Converting grain into motor fuel moved one step closer to reality with an amendment to the House agricultural bill, state Senator Loran Schmidt of Bellwood said Thursday.

"Since I introduced the bill to the Legislature with several others six years ago, I never gave up hope that there would be a grain alcohol plant in the state of Nebraska," he said.

Schmidt credited Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., with making the move in Washington, but warned that state efforts have to be made too.

"This makes it necessary to introduce LB52 into law as soon as possible. We must have a gas tax reduction for gasohol in order to qualify for the federal program," Schmidt said.

Schmidt also is considering asking the Legislature to use some funds now in the state Department of Agriculture for a state guaranteed loan program. The fund currently is used to earn interest which goes to operate a leadership training program for agricultural youth.

"We could still maintain the leadership and scholarship programs with interest from the fund, but also use it as a guaranteed loan to an alcohol plant builder," he suggested.

Schmidt warned that if the amendment to the agricultural bill does become a federal law other states will want a plant. "A lot of people will want to get on the bandwagon now. We have been laughed at annually until last year. I think we may need seed money to encourage the federal government to provide us with their loan program," he said.

The federal program as introduced by Thone could build as many as four plants by offering companies up to $15 million of the $20 million cost as a guaranteed loan that would have to be paid back. In the Thone amendment, there is also a $24 million research fund for work on byproducts of the process.

A similar measure has been introduced in the Senate by Nebraska Senators Carl Curtis and Ed Zorinsky. The Senate measure is attached to a rural development bill because Sen. Herman Talmage of Georgia said he felt it didn't belong in the farm bill.

Reaction came from the Nebraska Agricultural Products Industrial Utilization committee, better known as the Gasohol Committee. Gasohol is a mixture or blend of 10% alcohol and 90% gasoline.

"I am delighted. It is terrific. If we can get the Senate to do likewise we might be able to get some help yet this year," said Jack Quackenbush of Beatrice, committee chairman.

Dr. Bill Scheller, advisor to the committee, said, "Nebraska ought to meet all the requirements to get the loan guarantee."

"As far as I know we are the only state with a proposal to reduce the state gas tax for grain alcohol gasoline blends," he said.

Holly Hodge, a committee member from Holdrege, said he hoped the Senate would move the gasohol proposal to the agricultural bill because it would have a better chance of being in the final version of the farm program when it goes to a House-Senate conference committee. "If it is in both bills it will survive. If not, it's chances are only fair," he said.

Each of the four pilot plants envisioned by the amendment would use 21 million bushels of grain a day, according to Thone.

Charles R. Fricke, administrator of the gasohol program, said he was delighted with the Thone amendment. "I think we ought to try for at least two of the plants."

Is federal money habit forming?

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Columbus — The growing dependence of small towns on state and federal money was debated by Nebraska city officials Thursday.

During the opening session of the Mayor-Council Conference of the League of Nebraska Municipalities here, several officials complained about growing federal regulations.

However, officials also noted a growing willingness to accept the federal money that often accompanies the increased paper work.

Neligh City Administrator Dennis Gann said one major reason for more federal programs is that citizens are demanding more services from their cities. "And the old methods (of financing the services) are not adequate," he said.

Gann said that too often local officials look upon Washington as a government "of ogres, gnomes and dwarfs who aren't even members of the human race."

However, he said, federal programs for aid to the elderly, municipal construction and other projects "are doing some good."

Gann also said city officials must understand that an accounting of federal money spent in cities is demanded by citizens.

"You can't expect the federal government to come along like the Easter Bunny and drop dollars in your towns," he said.

York Mayor Lee Vineyard, noting that his city is involved in more than 20 grant programs for everything from law enforcement equipment to park development to library construction, said federal money is needed.

"You are going to have to do these things the way they (the federal government) want them done," he said, adding that federal dollars therefore often are the best way to complete civic projects.

League Executive Vice President David Chambers told the city officials, "The attitude has changed dramatically in Nebraska. Communities are more willing and ready to seek federal money."

He and Gann both said that cities with full-time administrators or managers seem to get more grant money.

Gann noted that Omaha's newly elected mayor, Al Veys, immediately appointed Rep. John Cavanaugh's brother, James Cavanaugh, as an aide to look for any available federal grants.

Crete Mayor Norman Behrens, however, said appointed managers and administrators have taken some power away from elected officials.

"Elected officials in the country are asked to do only one thing," Behrens complained, "get money from the taxpayers."

The Crete mayor also complained that the federal government's involvement in local assistance programs is partially responsible for the growing federal debt.

"We don't build a little red school house and pay for it anymore," he said. "We build a big one and charge the children who go there through their future taxes. What we do today will have to be paid off by our children."

Great Plains Center on verge of reality

Several years ago the Great Plains Center was just a glint in the eye of Max Larsen, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Now, with the promise of $250,000 in federal money from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the center soon will have a full-time director, office space and money to pay for student and faculty support and publications.

The $250,000 grant, financed under a new challenge grant program for cultural activities, was announced Thursday by Nebraska Sen. Edward Zorinsky.

The money will pay for the first four years' operating expenses of the Great Plains Center, a place to coordinate and announce grassland area research, said Larsen.

Under the federal program, the university is required to match the $250,000 grant with $750,000 in contributions or donations from citizens. This money will be raised, said Larsen, "through the University Foundation and the efforts of one Woody Varner (former University of Nebraska president)."

The contributions, placed in an endowment, will be used to continue the center's operation, Larsen explained.

The center first grew from a dream to an officially recognized name. Then with $30,000 in seed money, Larsen and his supporters sponsored a symposium this spring and wrote the proposal that brought in the federal grant.

Larsen, who has spearheaded the campaign, never doubted that the center would eventually become reality. "We had a belief in our ability and the greatness of our ideals."

Debaters well taught by woman

Omaha (AP) — One of Omaha Creighton Prep's three women teachers has coached five students to national debate competition this year.

Linda Mead, 33, took the job at the all-male school in 1975, after seven years at Omaha Holy Name High School.

"I had needed a change, a challenge," she said. "That was quite a change."

Miss Mead, voted Nebraska's "coach of the year" recently by fellow National Forensics League members, said her students were skeptical at first that a woman could successfully coach debate. "After a few knockdown, drag-out 'fun' fights, we kind of worked out a proving ground," she said.

Boy debate students aren't as emotional as girls, but under the stress of practice "there were a few tears" among the boys, she said.

Speech and debate classes at Prep are extracurricular and students receive no grades.

Students who will compete this June in Seattle, Wash., say Miss Mead helps them by being tough to please.

"I think everybody is dedicated. She keeps them that way," said Jim Crotty, who is returning for the second year to the nationals.

Alliance group asks formation of grand jury

Alliance (UPI) — The Concerned Citizens of Alliance and Box Butte County approved a petition Wednesday that requests the impanelment of a grand jury to probe alleged irregularities in the city audit, as it was initially filed with the auditor of public accounts.

The citizens group, formed two months ago when Alliance raised its electricity rates, alleged misapplication and misappropriation of city funds. The petition cites as examples funds of municipally owned utilities, airports, fairgrounds and a golf course.

The petition also alleged "improper maintenance and utilization" of the city's power plant.

The group needs 317 signatures before a grand jury can be impaneled to investigate the charges.

The Alliance City Council said it would answer the group's questions in writing, but added some questions may take as long as three weeks before being answered.

Legion women assist students

Two Lincoln students have received scholarships from the American Legion Auxiliary of Nebraska.

LeAvis Schneider and Sherry Lundquist both received $200 nurse gift tuition scholarships.

A total of 64 scholarships, valued at $10,350, were awarded to Nebraska students. The program is financed by the Little Red Schoolhouse Fund and funds received through the distribution of veteran-made poppies.

Indian tribe refuses to vacate land

Onawa, Iowa (AP) — A group of Omaha Indians refused Thursday to obey an injunction ordering them to vacate some 3,100 acres of land along the Missouri River.

The Indians claimed they are entitled to the land because it was once part of their reservation until the Missouri river changed course several years ago.

U.S. District Judge Andrew Bogue of South Dakota last week said the Indians had no claim to the land and Wednesday reinforced that decision with an order to vacate it.

Monona county Sheriff Albert Wood and County Attorney Stephen Allen, accompanied by deputies, met with the Indians about noon and served notice that they must leave.

The Indians, who occupied the land back in 1973, were first ordered to leave in 1975. But that action was suspended pending the outcome of the lawsuit over rights to the land.

Allen said some members of the Omaha Tribal Council may be served with contempt of court citations if the land is not vacated.

About 40 members of the Omaha tribe, based at Macy, Neb., were present when authorities arrived. Included were six members of the tribal police force.

Ed Cline, tribal council chairman, told authorities the Indians would not leave and said their attorneys were in the process of appealing the case to the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

Cline said Washington attorney William Vrepper was in St. Louis to try to get the appeals court to lift the eviction order temporarily.

Allen said the next step was up to the landowners involved.

The land is being rented to Harold Jackson and Otis Peterson and is owned by Roy Wilson and R.G.O., Inc.

Donald O'Brian of Sioux City, an attorney for the Indians, said he expected word soon from St. Louis.

Thomas Burk, an Omaha, Neb., attorney representing the landowners, said he and other attorneys were scheduled to meet Friday to decide what to do next. He said he may go to Minneca County District Court to force eviction.

Park won't go to vote as expected

Beatrice — Voters here may have to wait until next November's general election to pass final judgment on the beleaguered Hannibal park.

It appeared the on-again, off-again development would be up for special election this spring as the result of a protest petition and follow-up district court filing. But administrative assistant Terry Doyle said the 1,571-name petition is about 50 signatures short of meeting the legal requirement.

The 1,346 signatures he has certified as valid, however, are enough to force the issue to appear on a general election ballot. For a special election, 20% of the current voter registration, 6,983 as of April 11, was the requirement.

"I've checked and rechecked it," Doyle said. "It's been double and triple checked."

Doyle had originally refused to certify the April 11 petition, alleging it was technically invalid because it was handled as a referendum rather than an initiative procedure. But Councilman Doug Probst filed a writ of mandamus asking the court to force Doyle to act.

Conceivably a special election could still be called by the city council to expedite a decision on the matter. But the council has repeatedly endorsed the park and may want no part in bringing it to a vote.

The 40-acre park, located in northeast Beatrice, is scheduled for development with 25% local payment and the balance from state-federal funds.

Fair Board to meet

The State Fair Board will meet Friday at 9:30 a.m. at the Fairgrounds Administration Building to consider refunding of outstanding revenue bonds issued in 1974 and 1975 by Lancaster County in connection with the financing of a new grandstand and related facilities and a supplemental lease agreement with the county.

Any teacher can improve

His gangly legs carried him back and forth across the small stage. Sometimes he stumbled. Often he came precariously close to the platform edge.

The large lecture hall was filled, eyes pinned on the professor. For at least once a semester this man tumbled off the stage.

Attendance in the professor's class was high. But whatever we learned about the subject matter 15 years ago is now drowned out by the memory of this one-man sideshow.

Learning, not the sideshows, is the important part of teaching, and Dr. Delvee Wright helps University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors improve these teaching skills.

For three years Dr. Wright has been working with the faculty self-analysis program, a confidential and purely voluntary service.

The professors who seek out help from the UNL Teaching and Learning Center come from many disciplines and many age groups. But generally they fall into two categories, said Dr. Wright.

Many older, even tenured professors, who already have good teaching skills, seek out the help simply because they are interested in new ideas or just want to talk about alternatives they may want to try, she said.

Dr. Wright also works with many young instructors who are insecure in their teaching or who feel their job may be in jeopardy.

Those teachers in the middle ages, who are seeking tenure or promotion, are more likely to emphasize research rather than teaching, Dr. Wright said.

What UNL faculty members find in Dr. Wright is a sensitive and positive analysis of their teaching methods, some new ideas and skills and the chance to make whatever changes they feel are necessary.

A first-year instructor came to Dr. Wright, unhappy with his teaching and open to any suggestions.

This instructor was teaching the way he had been taught. He was giving daily lectures to a small graduate class. The students were bored and he was unhappy.

Dr. Wright suggested that the responsibility for learning be turned over to the class members themselves using a seminar approach.

Students were assigned responsibilities; they worked out solutions to problems in class rather than listening to lectures. The instructor merely set the stage and the focus was on the students.

Dr. Wright returned to the class later in the semester and found that many students had arrived early to look over their work.

The instructor had told the students that the new approach was Dr. Wright's idea and one student had the ultimate compliment:

"This is a lot more work. But you sure have your head screwed on right," he told Dr. Wright.

"They liked the opportunity to do it themselves," said Dr. Wright, who has taught both high school and college.

"The students were now the participants rather than the passive receivers," she said.

Large lecture classes are the toughest to teach, Dr. Wright admits. But even when 100 chairs are bolted to the floor different techniques can be used to increase student involvement, to promote variety.

Some professors will shift topics or change the pace by using differing media like films, slides, overhead projector every 15 minutes — the average attention span. Others have learned to use the question and answer approach successfully even in the lecture class, she said.

Good teaching, however, is more than just strategy. It is also organization, Dr. Wright believes. Too often teachers will organize by topic rather than by what they want students to accomplish during the course, she said.

The self-analysis program starts with a discussion of the professor's course, what he wants the students to learn, what he expects from the students. Dr. Wright often looks at the course outline.

Then she begins to collect data by observing the class, by getting student feedback on the professor's methods through a questionnaire. Often the professor and class in action will be captured through videotape.

Just by viewing the videotape several times the professor can often pick out his own weak and strong points, his distracting mannerisms, Dr. Wright said.

Then Dr. Wright and the professor use the data to look over alternative methods. The program is organized so that professors often become aware of their problems themselves and become their own problem solvers, she said.

Dr. Wright tries to keep the process as positive as possible. Though all the information is confidential, there is still a psychological risk for the professor.

Even picking up the telephone and asking a stranger for help is difficult. "There is a lot of ego involvement in teaching," and Dr. Wright knows she is working in a "tender area."

But she regrets that some professors view the word "improvement" as meaning they aren't doing a good job now.

"There is always room for growth, even if it's only an increased awareness of options," she believes.

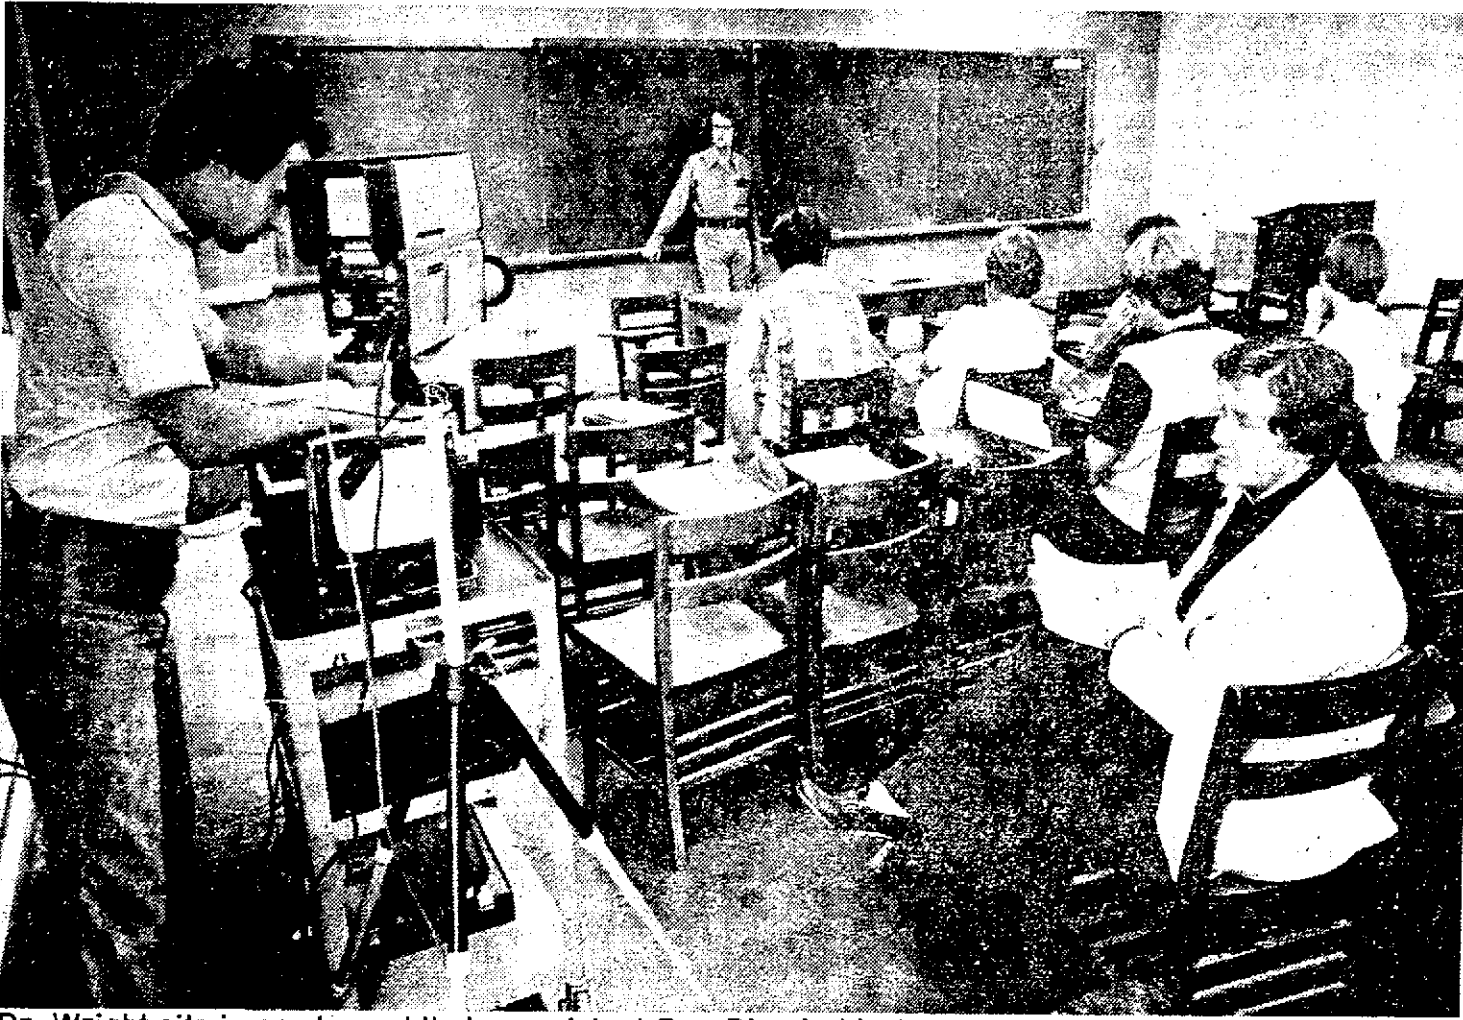

Good teaching can be learned, Dr. Wright believes. Different people are better with different strategies, but anyone can learn new strategies if he wants to, she said.

The self-analysis process, borrowed from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, is not an end in itself. Much of Dr. Wright's job is being able to work with people, to respect their feelings of frustration, to have at her fingertips the teaching strategies that might help them.

And for her the end result of her job is satisfaction. "I get my kicks when I see the changes in teaching, or when people begin to feel better about their teaching."

Dr. Wright discusses work with Kip Huivershorn.

Teen-age girls set up T-shirt tie-dyeing firm

San Francisco — The cat corporation opened for business in our scatter at Sinking Inn the other day. The Cat Corp is two teen-age girls. (One mine. How come I have all the luck?)

They are in the business of tie-dyeing. I bought four girls' undershirts — $3.69 at Penney's delightful store of low-cost clothing.

I bought a bunch of dye. They tie-dyed the shirts in the sink. (The sink has changed from white to rainbow but who knows maybe it improves the kitchen.)

They went out and sold the shirts. Profit $1 each.

Actually, the profit will run much higher. Because "Can you buy us 12 more shirts tomorrow?"

They are saving up to buy a car. A Porsche. Or maybe a Rolls Royce.

The corporation has no overhead. You buy the shirts and dye and we'll do all the work.

I said "How about the rubber bands?" The shirts are folded. Tied with rubber bands. They said "That's all right."

Postcard

By Stan Delaplane

We found a lot of them in your desk drawer.

I said "Fetch me the cooking sherry. Shall I pay your income tax too?"

They said that would be groovy.

Fortune never knocked on my door. Oh, I kept a jump ahead of the bagman, but oil wells didn't gush in the backyard.

I got a little Texas oil stock. I get hopeful letters from the president. He's a cheerful chap. Hasn't got enough oil to run a service station. But he stays right in there, drilling like a dentist.

Your continued faith is an inspiration to your president.

and the officers of the company.

It gives us incentive — as finders and producers of oil — to continue our everlasting search for this precious product.

At Christmas, he "wishes you and yours the very best." Twice a year I get $10 as a dividend.

A little's better than none," said my grandmother. "As the farmer said when the cow kicked the milk pail over him."

Sunny days (and a drought year) — in the Golden State. Since Lady Luck never dealt me a pat hand, I have hopes that the children will turn out richly.

I said "Where do I come into the corporation? Only the financing?" None of the profits?

They said they would tie-dye a T-shirt for me. Generously. "You buy one and we'll dye it. And we won't charge you anything."

They left the shirts dyeing in the sink. (We're surely the only ones on the block with a sink like that.)

Barbara is an undercover drug agent — a 'narc'

(c) Newhouse News Service

Portland, Ore. — Teen-aged boys fall in love with her. High school principals give her dirty looks and treat her like scum. The Portland police consider her one of their best.

She's Barbara (not her real name), an undercover narcotics agent in her mid-20s who can (and does) pass for a 17-year-old high school student.

Her job is to find young drug dealers and, ultimately, trace the drugs back to the suppliers.

She has been enrolled in various Portland high schools as a student from time to time to get close to the drug dealers. She spends a lot of time at the teen-age hangouts in town and she has perfected her skill at speaking the language of the young.

"Sometimes I let my hair go and don't wash it to look really grubby," Barbara said. "I'll wear beat-up jeans and old clothes so that I fit in with that crowd. It's really funny then when a school principal or a parent walks by and gives me a dirty look. I always think, 'If you only knew!'"

Barbara said she has bought hard drugs from kids as young as 14 and adults as old as 65.

"Age is not a limiting factor in the dope market," she said. "And there is nothing to indicate that illegal drugs are limited to the urban areas."

"I know of dealers working in . . . all the suburban schools," she added. "But they are out of our jurisdiction. We can only work in the city schools."

Barbara said far and away the most widely used illegal substance found in the high schools is marijuana. Speed, she surmised, is probably second.

"Cocaine is available in all of the schools. You just have to know who is selling it," she said. "There isn't as much of it going around. Generally, it's too expensive for high school kids."

"Heroin is more of a street drug, but there is no doubt in my mind that a high school kid could buy it if he really wanted it. There is always somebody who knows somebody who's selling it."

High school girls are users of drugs to about the same degree as high school boys, Barbara said. But they are less likely to be dealers.

"I've seen girls dealing drugs, but it is less predominant than with the guys. The young women don't need the same kind of status thing as the boys do. Drugs are primarily a social thing within the schools — some guys wear a letterman's jacket, others deal dope. Either way they feel they have earned the esteem of their peers."

"The kids have a different image of a hero now."

"Kids who use drugs develop a loose attitude toward themselves and their fellow man," she said. "I can just hear what kids who read this are going to say: 'They'll think I'm really full of it. But it's true. I see it all the time.'"

"I don't think their minds are stable enough to handle things like drugs, even marijuana and alcohol. Some adults aren't stable enough to handle alcohol or marijuana either."

Which examples are forcing bids?

By B. Jay Becker

Below are eight unrelated bidding sequences. In each case, do you consider the last bid of the sequence forcing (compelling partner to bid again), or not forcing (permitting partner to pass)? A bid that merely urges partner to bid again should be treated as not forcing.

2. Not forcing. If South barely made the grade for his spade bid, he may pass.

3. Not forcing. North may have minimum values for his opening bid, and South may have minimum values for his spade response. South may pass.

4. Not forcing. Usually, when responder names a new suit, the bid is forcing. The change-of-suit principle does not apply,

5. Not forcing. Three spades is merely invitational. South may pass when he has only 6 or 7 points instead of the 8 or 9 he might have had for the notrump response. The notrump bid shows 6 to 9 points.

6. Forcing. Whenever responder names a new suit the bid is forcing, even opposite a preemptive bid.

7. Not forcing. A jump rebid by the opener is not forcing. (But note that a jump rebid by responder is forcing.)

8. Not forcing. South indicates a hand with which he would probably have opened three spades had he been dealer. North may therefore pass with a minimum opening bid when his hand indicates that there is no game. For his three spade bid, South may have something like

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My friend is a wealthy 76-year-old widow who is being "taken" by a couple in their 40s who live near her.

This couple is a husband-and-wife team who have made a "career out of being this widow's friend. They see that she has company every evening (inviting themselves to her home for dinner), they do all her chores: shopping, cleaning, painting, yard work, etc.

I understand they even have a key to her home and her safety deposit box! She bought them a new car and has given them an interest-free loan so their son could go to college.

I am told that these con artists are going to get a bulk of her estate when she passes on. I think her estate should go to her own kinfolk who live in a faraway state, don't you?

Should I get in touch with her relatives and tell them what is going on here? They haven't been here in years, so they have no way of knowing.

CONCERNED FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Allowing for your good intentions, I think you are meddling in your friend's affairs. She obviously appreciates the couple's companionship and help, and unless she is mentally incompetent, she's entitled to do whatever she wants with her money — now and later.

Her kinfolk who haven't visited this aging widowed relative in years seem less deserving to share in her estate than the neighbors you describe.

DEAR ABBY: I think my husband is entirely too friendly to strange women. For instance, he will bury his nose in an elevator operator's hair and say, "My, you have beautiful hair — and it smells nice, too."

Or he will compliment a waitress on her beautiful legs or school-girl figure.

When I tell him that it shows a lack of respect for me when he does this in my presence, he says he is only trying to make a poor working girl feel good.

How do you feel about this sort of thing, Abby? Am I wrong to resent it?

BARRY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It is ill-mannered and presumptuous for a man to make personal remarks (complimentary or otherwise) to strange women in (or out of) his wife's presence.

Tell Barry if he doesn't cut it out, one of those poor working girls is apt to work him over.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have a CB radio. Last month I met someone in person that I used to talk to on the radio. We go to the same school, so he was easy to meet.

This person is 15 and spends his weekends at Juvenile Hall. He told me last week that he has six months more at Juvy Hall, after which he will be on probation for a long time. He said he would rather kill himself than to keep going back there for weekends, and that is what he is planning to do.

He said his mother is finally sick of him, and his stepdad couldn't care less about him. I asked if he didn't have some relatives he could stay with, and he said nobody wants him.

Do you think it would be a wise decision to ask this person to come and live with my family because that's exactly what he needs? A family I think living with us could help him a lot. What do you think?

T S

DEAR T S: I think you are to be commended for your concern about this person's welfare, but it's up to your parents to make that decision, not me.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 68700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

How can you figure what insurance costs?

New York — It's not unusual to find people paying 50% and sometimes even 100%, more than they have to for life insurance. About $208 billion worth of life insurance coverage was purchased last year, but because of the complexity of insurance pricing, few people knew how to compare costs or search out the best buys.

But thanks to consumer pressures, a new cost comparison index has been developed by the life insurance industry and is slowly coming into use. It's called the "interest adjusted index," and you can speed its adoption by asking life insurance agents to use it when they're selling you a policy. It's not the perfect measure of what life insurance costs, but it's better than what's gone before.

The older (and more questionable) method of showing life insurance costs is called the "net cost method," which is still in use in the vast majority of states. Under this system, the salesmen adds up all the premiums you pay for an ordinary life policy over 20 years, subtracts any dividends paid, and also subtracts the cash value. The result, he may suggest, is the true cost of your coverage.

Usually the cash value about equals what you paid in, which makes it appear that you've had the insurance "free" all those years. Often the cash value is even higher than the amount you paid in, as if the company is actually paying you something for the honor of your patronage. Obviously, something is wrong with this calculation.

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant Quinn

"What it leaves out," says Richard Hemmings of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, "is the money you're losing by buying insurance rather than putting that premium in the bank every year to earn interest." It's no great shakes to get your money back after 20 years when it would have increased 300% if you'd banked it at 7% interest.

Last year, NAIC adopted an "interest adjusted" cost disclosure rule which takes this lost interest into account. So far only two states have adopted the rule: New Jersey, where interest adjusted cost must be disclosed on every policy sold after July 1, and Iowa, where the effective date is Jan. 1, 1978. But a survey now being done by Hemmings suggests that several other states are preparing to act.

Under the rules, you must be given two cost numbers per $1,000 of coverage: First, a "surrender cost index," which shows the cost of a policy if you cash it in after 10 or 20 years.

And second, a "net payment" cost index," which shows the cost if you die after 10 or 20 years and your survivors get the death benefit rather than the cash value. The second cost is much higher than the first.

Dividends are shown separately, since they're not guaranteed. Also, this gives a fairer shake to companies that charge less for policies and don't pay dividends. NAIC requires the distribution of a Buyer's Guide, which explains how the indexes work.

According to NAIC, five states have rules requiring some form of interest-adjusted cost disclosure that predated the NAIC rule. They are Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Texas and West Virginia. In New York, California, and Oregon, interest adjusted cost must be given only in certain limited circumstances.

A drawback to the NAIC rule is that you may not be given the interest adjusted cost until the life insurance policy is actually delivered. That's too late for making cost comparisons. By contrast, Pennsylvania requires the cost to be disclosed no later than the time you apply for coverage.

At least two insurance companies — Travelers Life and Prudential Life — will automatically supply interest adjusted cost in all states. Allstate has been doing so for four years.

Agents for most other companies can, however, supply these costs if you ask for them. By all means do so.

Fargo native plans hill, 3 lakes where dirt dug

Fargo, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota's largest city doesn't have a hill. Ed Clapp is going to build one.

Fargo also lacks a lake. Clapp says he's going to fix that too.

This east-central North Dakota city of 60,000 is located in the fertile Red River Valley. The terrain around here is mostly table-top flat — the city's elevation is 900 feet. An arrow-straight horizon stretches unbroken for miles.

Clapp, 58, a retired Army officer and director of a local bank, is a Fargo native. "I've lived all over the world," he says.

"I figure this is a good town for children to grow up in, but it would be a lot pleasanter to live on a lake and be near a recreation area like a ski hill would provide."

Clapp, an artillery officer in World War II and the Korean War, plans to take clay soil from his land at Fargo's south edge and build a 100-foot-high hill from it.

departed dirt will form three interconnecting lakes ranging in size from 12½ to 15½ acres, he says.

But there's a problem connected with hill-making in Fargo. The hill might sink.

"There's quite a bit of moisture in the Red River soil," says Clapp. "Engineers are afraid that when we put a big pile of heavy clay on top of it, the ground beneath will act like jelly and pop up some place else."

"So we're going to put up a 40-foot test hill — about 450,000 cubic yards... We'll let it stand a year to see what happens so we can anticipate what a full-sized hill will do."

If it works, the cost of the big hill — containing about a million cubic yards of dirt — will be about $750,000, Clapp estimates.

There will be additional costs for a ski lodge, snow-making equipment and landscaping on the 20-acre site. Clapp says the Fargo Park District "will accept the ski area for a public park."

Foundation OKs project funds

By Linda Olig
Star Staff Writer

The effects of biofeedback in helping elderly stroke victims regain the use of their muscles will be tested this summer or fall by Nebraska Wesleyan University students.

The $9,791 research project was funded Thursday by the Lincoln Foundation board.

Wesleyan psychology students will work with stroke patients at Madonna Professional Care Center. Biofeedback machines will amplify residual muscular activity to let patients "know when they're doing something right," said Dr. Marty Klein who will be the faculty project advisory.

In addition, the students will work closely with the patients to help build their self-esteem, he said.

Should the project prove successful, Klein said, students will develop a treatment program for general use.

Also approved by the foundation board was a $15,000 grant to cover half the cost of replacing inadequate theatrical lighting at the Lincoln Community Playhouse. The grant carried the stipulation that the playhouse also seek funds from the National Endowment for the Arts. Should the additional request be funded, the Lincoln Foundation grant would be reduced proportionately.

The foundation board also approved a $6,000 grant to the Lincoln Junior League to record the reminiscences of elderly storytellers of Nebraska's Indian tribes.

The Junior League had requested $8,000 from the foundation. However, the board agreed to the $6,000 figure, providing the league adds another $2,000 of its own. The Junior League already has put $16,000 into the project, The Nebraska Educational Television Network has contributed $11,931.

In other action, the Lincoln Foundation board

- Approved a $2,000 grant to Nebraska Outdoor Encounter to expand its program to problem youths and future teachers, and to develop out door and conservation education projects for school districts. The grant is contingent on the encounter group securing grants from other state foundations for the program expansion which will cost $20,530 in its first year.
- Approved a $750 loan to the League of Human Dignity to begin production of raised number floor indicators for use in elevators. The indicators would make buildings more accessible to the visually impaired.
- Tabled an $8,300 request from Tabitha Home Health Agency for half of the cost of its early detection clinics and charity allowance in 1978. The remainder of the $16,600 needed to run the program next year is to be provided by Tabitha Home.
- Rejected a request for $4,574 from Southeast Community College's Lincoln Campus to purchase two video portapak systems to be used by students, local agencies and individuals in the community.
- Approved four educational grants of $300 each to the Lincoln Consumer Credit Association.
- Approved executive committee action distributing $2,500 for the astronomical observatory at Holmes Park and $7,500 for an educational program during the civic center financing campaign.

Joe W. Seacrest
... grant in his honor

UNL to get hefty grant

A $50,000 honorary grant in the name of Joe W. Seacrest was created Thursday by the Lincoln Foundation to be used only by the Lincoln campus of the University of Nebraska.

The money will be distributed through the University of Nebraska Foundation.

In approving the honorary grant, the Lincoln Foundation board passed a resolution citing Seacrest for his long devotion to Lincoln, the University of Nebraska and the Lincoln Foundation.

The retired publisher of the Lincoln Evening Journal, Seacrest is honorary co-chairman of the $25 million University Foundation fund drive.

Aid sought to reduce teacher raise tax increase

Lincoln taxpayers may not feel the full bite of a proposed increase in teachers' salaries announced Wednesday by public school officials.

The Lincoln Board of Education and the Lincoln Education Association agreed to a $9,400 base salary for teachers, a $1.7 million increase to the school's budget which would require about 3.75 more taxpayer mills. That could increase taxes on a $35,000 house, under current property valuation, by about $42.

But, school officials are looking at a possible increase in state aid to education or an increase in assessed valuation in the county which might wipe out the increase to taxpayers.

The state aid, under LB33, could mean about $2 million more for the school coffers, a figure which would cover the salary increase, if the bill passes, according to school officials.

Lincoln public schools currently receive about $5.4 million, in state aid

Road work won't force home moves

Doniphan (AP) — A State Roads Dept. engineer told a public hearing Wednesday night that no homes or businesses will be relocated during a $5.2 million improvement project along U.S. 281 between Hastings and Doniphan.

Joe Volf, rural design engineer, said access roads will be provided for farmsteads and businesses along the highway between Hastings and Grand Island.

District Engineer Andy Necas said construction will start about 1982 following land acquisition and final design hearings.

3 nominated for retiring judge's post

Three names have been submitted to Gov. J. James Exon by the Fifth District Court Judicial Nominating Commission to fill the vacancy created when Judge Howard V. Kanouff retires.

Nominated were Bryce Bartu, 41, Seward; Larry Cartenson, 40, Aurora; and Robert Sullivan, 57, Wahoo.

State Supreme Court Justice Harry Spencer, who heads the nominating commission, wrote Exon that the names were submitted in alphabetical order to avoid any indication of preference by commission members.

There were five candidates for Judge Kanouff's job, Spencer said, but the commission felt it's three choices were the best qualified.

Official faces trial

Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP) — A federal judge ruled that imprisoned former President Alejandro Lanusse must stand trial in connection with a financial scandal.

Judge accused of mishandling case

Grand Island (AP) — A Grand Island man who has accused the judge presiding over his case of mishandling it refused Thursday to enter a plea to charges of drug trafficking.

Hall County District Court Judge Donald Weaver, entered a plea of innocent on behalf of Jimmy Joe Prunty, 21, who faces three counts of selling amphetamines.

Prunty was arrested in a 10-county outstate drug sweep by the State Patrol and local law enforcement officers recently. Most of the charges arising from that sweep were developed in an undercover investigation by the patrol.

At a Wednesday forum, sponsored by the Nebraska Bar Association to get public comments on the judiciary system, Prunty accused Weaver of mishandling his case and the cases of two women, one of them his wife, who were also charged with felony drug crimes in the patrol's sweep.

The women are Joleen Prunty, 24, and Patty L. Stahr, 20.

Prunty said Weaver had used "speedy arrangements" to prevent the use of various legal devices by the defense.

At the forum Prunty also criticized Nebraska's merit system of selecting judges. He told the forum that "friendly lawyers" helped him prepare his statement.

Frontier to buy bag check units

Frontier Airlines has sent the Lincoln Airport Authority a written commitment that it will purchase X-ray baggage check machines for the airport.

Frontier decided to take advantage of a $5,000 incentive offer from the airport board to buy the machine which will make boarding searches quicker, according to Roland Harr, airport manager.

Frontier's self-set deadline for installing the baggage check machine is the same as its announced starting date for a new Lincoln to Chicago route recently approved by the federal Civil Aeronautics Board.

Harr said he has received no written commitments from United Airlines to install an X-ray baggage check device, although the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday that such a commitment had been made by a United executive.

Harr said he is confident that United Airlines would purchase its own baggage check machine eventually.

United also was offered a $5,000 incentive to install the machine, Harr said. The two airlines had sought to buy one machine for both airlines, but the airport floor space can't accommodate them.

Officials at United's Lincoln and Chicago offices couldn't be reached for comment.

Coal-burning power plant sites eyed

Grand Island (AP) — The Grand Island-Hall County Regional Planning Commission Wednesday night discussed eight prospective sites for a proposed coal-burning power plant.

The Commission is expected to recommend a site in June.

Each of the prospective sites is within five to six miles of the city.

A representative of the city's consulting firm of Lutz, Daily and Brain told the commission about 300 acres would be needed for the plant site.

Home abolished

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (UPI) — The Linn County Board of Supervisors has voted to demolish the old county home north of Marion.

Sen. Dworak to address graduates at Platte Tech Community College

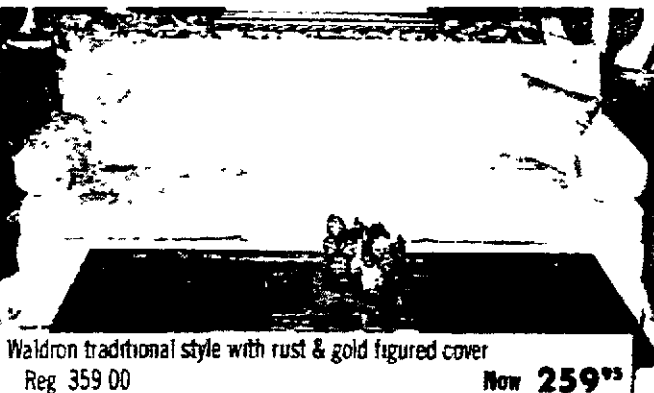

Columbus (AP) — Platte Technical Community College will award diplomas to about 150 students on Friday.

State Sen. Donald Dworak will deliver the commencement address.

Board stands by land idea

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln City Library board reaffirmed its position Thursday on the acquisition of land for future libraries in new development areas.

Land for potential library sites should be dedicated by the developer, board members agreed, rather than having the library system purchase the land.

"If land is required for streets and green area . . . and paid for by the purchaser," Chairman Paul Ess said, "then the same concept should be carried on in that subdivision and should probably include the library system."

Besides, the presence of a neighborhood library "enhances the property," said board member Sidney Sweet. "The cost of the land spread over the entire subdivision is very minor, compared to the cost of constructing a building."

Also at the meeting, the board rejected a lease offer for the Lincoln-Lancaster County Commission on the Status of Women, but approved a proposal for a Lincoln-Lancaster Health Department nursing station at the Arnold Heights branch building.

The Commission on the Status of Women had requested office space in the Bennett Martin Library addition, which is now under construction. However, Charles Dalrymple, director of the Lincoln City Libraries, said the space is already 100% committed to library use.

However, space is available for the nursing station clinic at the Arnold Heights library.

Sharing the building with the health department "should result in better usage of the building," Dalrymple said. "It seems completely harmonious" with the library operation and "may bring greater attention to the library" there.

The Arnold Heights building has been provided without cost to the Lincoln City Libraries by the Lincoln Housing Authority.

Dalrymple also announced that all libraries would be closed Monday, May 30, for Memorial Day.

City libraries plan June birthday party

In June, the Lincoln City Libraries will observe its 100th birthday and the event will not pass without fanfare.

"The Lincoln City Library Foundation and board are jointly planning to publish some materials relating to the library," said Director Charles Dalrymple. "One will be an abbreviated chronological history of the library with appropriate displays throughout the system."

Other centennial activities have not been finalized by the two groups, Dalrymple said.

The library system's past, he said, has been one of "many new developments and continual growth."

"Initially, there was $500 appropriated for the first year," he explained, "when you could buy a whole meal for a nickel. "Although it sounds like small change now, it would buy quite a bit of land, a couple of horses and a wagon in 1877."

According to Dalrymple, plans for the first library were made in 1876, by the members of Reading Room Association, who accumulated many of the initial books and library resources.

The first library was located on the second floor of a building at 12th and O Sts., Dalrymple said. The first librarian was Mrs. Ada Van Pelt.

He added that the library has changed locations several times including a move caused by an 1898 fire which destroyed the downtown Masonic Lodge building, where the library had rented quarters.

In 1962, it took up occupation in its current building, which was donated by Dorothy and Abe Martin.

Most often credited with the establishment of the library system was "a remarkably foresighted man, Charles H. Gere," after whom the Gere Branch Library at 56th and Normal was named, Dalrymple said.

"He (Gere) was the first president of the library board," he said, "and through the Reading Room Association, he went to then Mayor H. W. Hardy" to ask for budget appropriations for the first library.

The first branch library within the system and within the corporate city limits was the Northeast Branch, established in 1909.

Besides Lincoln's main library, Bennett Martin Public Library at 14th and N Sts., the system currently includes two major branches, four neighborhood branches and two mini-libraries.

In addition, preliminary city plans call for five more major and mini-branches to be established between 1978 and 1983.

"If you can remember how Nebraska was in 1877, you'll know that there were few autos, not many radios and no telephones," Dalrymple said. "So in the early history of this city we became a viable part of the information resources in the community."

"We are proud of our heritage," he added. "The libraries here have contributed to the viability of Lincoln's cultural and educational reputation throughout the history of the city."

Burglar nets $85 from office at Gateway Shopping Center

A burglar at Gateway Shopping Center early Thursday morning caused $350 damage for $85 in petty cash.

The burglar threw a piece of concrete through an east door of the Gallery Mall and crawled through, police said.

He then pried open the Gateway manager's office door with a screwdriver and crowbar, and damaged a file cabinet and two desks while searching for loot, police said.

The burglar then fled with the box of cash.

LANCASTER COUNTY ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT

NOTICE OF ROAD LOCATION-DESIGN HEARING

The Lancaster County Engineering Department will hold a PUBLIC HEARING on Project No. M-5247(1), 70th and Pioneers Boulevard intersection, consisting of a four-lane channelized intersection with left turn lanes on both 70th Street and Pioneers Boulevard, including pavement, grading and medians.

CITY: Lincoln, Nebraska

MEETING PLACE: City Council Chambers

TIME: 7:30 P.M.

DATE: Thursday, June 16, 1977

A public hearing on the above project is being held in order to provide information on the location and design features of the above described project. All persons interested in the project are invited to attend and present their views and questions. # Tractors used to knock over portable toilet

A modern version of an old prank — overturning the out-house — occurred at a Lincoln construction site early Thursday morning.

Two persons, believed to be juveniles, started up two tractors at 5200 R St. One of the tractors drove into a portable toilet, tipping it over and breaking one side.

Someone has been taken late-night rides on the tractors for the past several nights, police were told.

Car, restaurant glass broken; damage $1,500

Car and restaurant owners in two parts of town awoke Thursday to discover about $1,500 in glass broken by vandals.

Windshields or rear windows of six cars in southeast Lincoln were broken, some by what police believe to be a bat. Two other cars received damage to rear view mirrors.

The vandalism in southeast Lincoln centered in the 60th and Cullen Drive area.

Across town, two cars near 20th and U Streets received similar damage early Thursday morning.

Also in that area, vandals threw rocks through windows of two N. 27th Street restaurants. The east window of McDonalds, 865 N. 27th, and a 5-by-6-foot window at the Pinata Mexican Restaurant, 27th and W, were broken.

Police Thursday had no suspects in any of the incidents.

Justice Dept. increases phone fraud charges

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Justice Department has increased charges against two original defendants and indicted two others in an alleged scheme to defraud Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

David E. Milbourn, 52, Omaha, and James Minehan, 38, White Bear, Minn., were originally charged with one count of wire fraud following their arrest at the Omaha Hilton Hotel Jan. 12 and were subsequently released on bond.

Thursday, a federal grand jury indicted Milbourn, Minehan, Melbourn's son, Robert, 33, Gretna, and Charles Davidson, 37, Carter Lake, Iowa, on 24 wire fraud charges.

The grand jury alleged the four unlawfully devised and intended to devise a scheme to defraud Northwestern Bell of an undetermined amount of money by using a "red box" and at least three fraudulent telephone credit card numbers to make long distance interstate and intrastate telephone calls from public coin telephones.

The alleged scheme, the government said, occurred from Jan. 1, 1976 to Feb. 1 of this year.

The government said a "red box" is capable of simulating the electronic signal of coin deposits heard by the long distance operator and when used by the defendants they "would not deposit any money in the telephone" to pay for the long distance calls.

The government said the calls were made to Westbrook, Montrose, Minneapolis, and Glencoe, Minn., Los Angeles, Calif., Eagle Lake, Tex., Boca Raton, Fla., Reno and Las Vegas, Nev., Des Moines, Ames and Roland, Iowa, San Francisco, Atlanta, Sylvania, Ohio, and Utica, N.Y.

In addition, the grand jury indicted two men whose whereabouts are unknown for an alleged fraudulent check writing scheme totaling $6,170 from Sept. 7 to Sept. 13 of last year.

Named in the 10-count indictment were Michael Murdaugh, 32, San Antonio, Tex., and John Allen Tate, in his 20s from South Dakota.

The government alleged most of the checks in question were mailed from Lincoln to banks in Denver, Colo., Oklahoma City, Okla. and Indianapolis, Ind.

Also indicted was the former operator of a downtown Omaha clothing store.

John Wallace Johnson, 39, was charged with writing an insufficient fund check totaling $394.22 to a U.S. Postal Service carrier.

Johnson, who operated The Batchelors Quarters, has disappeared from Omaha since the store was closed earlier this year, the government said.

The rest of the indictments concerned those who the government had earlier charged with various crimes but who refused to waive the grand jury proceedings.

Logue indicted for robbery

Omaha (AP) — A federal grand jury in Omaha Thursday indicted Maurice Logue, 27, for the April 29 robbery of the First National Bank of Kearney, Neb.

The indictment accused Logue of taking $2,900 from the bank. Logue is in jail in Yankton, S.D. awaiting further court hearings in Omaha.

Federal prosecutors have no record of Logue's home address, only that his parents and other relatives live in Aurora.

The grand jury also indicted Logue for interstate transportation of an auto stolen in Dodge County.

ABC sweeps daytime Emmys

New York (AP) — "Ryan's Hope" on ABC won four Emmy awards Thursday, including best daytime drama series, at a ceremony of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

In a 90-minute broadcast from Central Park, ABC dominated the daytime Emmys with 10 of the coveted golden statuettes.

The academy voted for Val Dufour of "Search for Tomorrow" on CBS as best actor. Helen Gallagher was voted best actress for her work in "Ryan's Hope."

The outstanding game or audience participation show was "Family Feud" on ABC. Outstanding host or hostess for such a show was Bert Convy, for "Tattletales," on CBS.

Phil Donohue, whose show is syndicated, was selected outstanding host in a talk, service or variety show. "The Merv Griffin Show," which also is syndicated, won the Emmy as best talk, service or variety series.

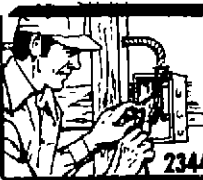

ABC withdrew its "Good Morning, America" show from the talk, service or variety category after deciding it was "inappropriate" among such programs as "The Gong Show," "Dinah!" and "The Mike Douglas Show."

The Public Broadcasting Service got three Emmys, winning in each category in which it was nominated.

CBS won two awards, NBC got one and three Emmys went to syndicated shows.

Jellyfish near shore thought to be oil slick

Monterey, Calif. (AP) — Nature lovers were relieved when what they thought was a massive oil slick threatening the scenic coastline near Big Sur turned out to be jellyfish — millions of them.

A marine biologist at Stanford University's Hopkins Marine Station was called in on the case after the Coast Guard was alerted to the apparent slick, which was 25 miles long by five miles wide.

The biologist determined the slimy sprawl was made up of millions of so-called Purple
Sailors and posed no threat.

Authorities surmised that recent winds which have caused unsettled weather for California blew the jellyfish closer to shore than they are normally found.

Carter compromise softens-Israel arms policy

Washington (AP) — President Carter and Israeli supporters in the Senate reached a compromise Thursday to allow the Jewish state special consideration in receiving American arms and technology, congressional sources reported.

The compromise was worked out in an hour-long meeting at the White House between Carter, Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Frank Church, D-Idaho, and others.

The meeting was sought after reports circulated that Carter intended to leave Israel out of a preferred category of nations which would receive shipments of sophisticated American weapons and technology as well as being allowed to coproduce certain type of arms.

Under pressure from the Israeli Embassy, two amendments were introduced stating that American interest would be served by allowing Israel to coproduce key weapons and stating that the United States should take no action to damage Israel's military capability.

After the White House meeting, the sources said Carter agreed to a proposal by Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Clifford Case, R-N.J.

They asked for a presidential determination that where restrictions apply on coproduction, technological transfer and sale of weapons, there be an exception for countries "who are friendly to the United States and must depend on advanced weaponry to offset quantitative and other" matters in order to maintain a regional military balance.

While not mentioning Israel by name, the sources said Carter specifically had the Jewish state in mind in agreeing to issue the determination.

The only addition that Carter made to the Jackson-Case language was to insert the qualification that an exception would require a presidential determination.

In exchange for the President's concession, Case and other Israeli supporters agreed to "shelve" one of the amendments dealing with coproduction.

The President also worked out a compromise with the Israeli supporters on the question of supplying Israel new F16 fighter-bombers.

Carter reportedly said he would give prompt consideration to long-standing Israeli requests for engines and transmissions to power the Jewish state's new Chariot tank.

As part of the tradeoff, Sens. Church and Javits agreed to modify their amendment dealing with past U.S. commitments to supply Israel with new F16 fighter-bombers as well as allowing the Jerusalem government rights to coproduce the plane.

The original amendment included a reference to a 1974 section of the Sinai agreement between Israel and Egypt whereby then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger promised Israel large numbers of F16s as well as coproduction rights.

The congressional sources said Carter objected to having specific language explicitly carrying out a promise made by Kissinger.

Ex-congressman is indicted on fraud

New Orleans (AP) — Richard Tonry, who resigned from Congress a week ago amid allegations of widespread vote fraud, was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges stemming from his campaign.

Also indicted was John W. Mumphrey, one of Tonry's law partners.

Tonry, 42, was accused in the indictment of obstruction of justice, receiving more than $54,000 in illegal campaign contributions, promising jobs for political purposes, and conspiracy.

Mumphrey was accused of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying to a grand jury.

The U.S. attorney's office originally announced Mumphrey was also charged with promising jobs for political purposes. A spokesman said later that announcement was an error. Summonses were issued for their arrest.

Tonry had predicted the indictment when he complained to the Justice Department about the way U.S. Attorney Gerald Gallinhouse was handling an investigation into the Oct. 2, 1976, Democratic primary election. Tonry said Gallinhouse, a Republican, was conspiring against the Democratic nominee.

But Atty. Gen. Griffin bell cleared Gallinhouse last week, commending him and the FBI for "the fine work they have done on this investigation."

Twenty-two poll workers have pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to charges stemming from the vote fraud investigation.

Tonry won the primary by 184 votes. A state judge, ruling on a suit challenging the outcome of the election, said Tonry got at least 229 fraudulent votes compared to at least 25 for his opponent, James Moreau.

Tonry resigned May 3, the day a congressional subcommittee was to vote on whether he should be thrown out. Two of the three subcommittee members said they would have voted to recommend his ouster.

Since his resignation, there has been no representative from the 1st District, which includes four parishes in southeast Louisiana, with half the constituents in east New Orleans. It is the seat held for 36 years by F. Edward Hebert, who retired last year.

Machinery is in motion for a new election, but Moreau has asked the state Supreme Court to name him the nominee without further balloting. A hearing on that issue is scheduled for May 18.

The court refused Wednesday to block preliminary moves to set up the primary, tentatively scheduled for June 25 with a runoff July 30. The governor has scheduled the general election for Aug. 27.

Tonry has already begun a campaign for the seat, as have Moreau and two other candidates.

On the day Tonry returned home from Washington, he and Moreau locked horns in a bitter exchange, with Moreau calling Tonry fat and Tonry responding that Moreau was just a pawn of the politically powerful Perez family of Plaquemines Parish.

Tonry has said he was innocent in the vote fraud case, that he just profited from a system which is normal in the district where dead people frequently are credited with voting. He repeatedly said his opponents got more fraudulent votes than he did, but he has not produced proof.

Shapp ordered to return federal campaign funds

Washington (UPI) — Gov. Milton Shapp Thursday was ordered to repay almost $300,000 in federal funds he received for his 1976 presidential campaign in what was termed a "shocking" case of illegal campaign contributions.

In its ruling, the Federal Election Commission refused to say whether the Pennsylvania governor or anyone in his campaign was involved in illegal acts.

The commission said the investigation was continuing, and ruled Shapp had qualified for federal funds on the basis of bogus campaign contributions in North Carolina, Alabama, Nevada, Texas and Georgia.

Shapp, a millionaire, was given 30 days to appeal the ruling, and 90 days to pay the money.

He was not immediately available for comment.

The FEC also levied fines of $25 to $500 on 12 of 16 persons who signed statements saying they will testify voluntarily the falsely contributed to the Shapp campaign.

"I find this case shocking," said Thomas Harris, newly elected committee chairman. "What distresses me is the rather casual and cavalier manner in which these people entered into this scheme to extract a large amount of money from the Federal Treasury."

The case hinges on how Shapp qualified for federal matching campaign funds. The law requires a candidate to raise $5,000 in individual contributions of $250 each from 20 states.

The FEC said in five states the $5,000 was raised partly in bogus contributions — either illegal corporate funds were used, or one individual gave money to others which was turned over as several contributions to the Shapp campaign.

Braves top Pirates, Cardinals clip Reds

United Press International

The Atlanta Braves finally won a game, but they did it without the help of a manager.

Max Leon drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a two-run single and scattered three hits before being relieved in the eighth inning as the Braves snapped their 17-game losing streak and Pittsburgh's 11-game winning streak with a 6-1 victory over the Pirates.

However, the Braves achieved their first victory since April 22 with no manager in their dugout. Braves' owner Ted Turner Wednesday sent Manager Dave Bristol on a 10-day special assignment and named himself coach and acting manager. But National League President Chub Feeney said Thursday he must approve Turner's contract before Turner could manage again. Coach Vern Benson handled the strategy decisions for Atlanta.

Leon and Rick Camp combined to end three Pirate hitting streaks — Dave Parker's at 22 games, Al Oliver's at 16 and Rennie Stennett's at 13.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis clobbered Cincinnati 10-1, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco 3-0, San Diego downed New York 5-2 and Los Angeles beat Montreal 8-2.

Right-hander Larry Christenson fired a three-hitter for his third career shutout while Greg Luzinski's double keyed a two-run first inning to give the Phillies their win over San Francisco. Garry Maddox and Jay Johnstone hit first-inning singles before Luzinski doubled to left for the game's first run. Johnstone then scored on Richie Hebner's infield grounder. Mike Schmidt made it 3-0 in the seventh with his seventh home run.

John D'Aquisto, Buddy Schultz and Al Hrabosky combined on a one-hitter and Don Kessinger, Tony Scott and Keith Hernandez drove in two runs each to lead the Cardinals to their easy victory Cincinnati. The Cardinals knocked out loser Pat Zachry with a six-run sixth inning, highlighted by Kessinger's two-run double and Scott's two-run single.

Dave Lopes and Reggie Smith hit home runs in the first inning to start Los Angeles en route to victory over Montreal and provide Don Sutton with his fifth triumph without a loss. Lopes and Smith smacked solo homers in the first inning to get the Dodgers off to a 2-0 lead and Sutton stroked a two-run double in the third to make it 4-0. Sutton blanked the Expos for eight innings before tiring in the ninth.

Tom Griffin homered and combined with Rollie Fingers to pitch a six-hitter as the Padres handed the slumping Mets their 10th loss in the last 11 games. Griffin's seventh homer of career came off loser Jerry Koosman in the seventh inning and gave the Padres a 2-0 lead. They added their eventual three-run margin in the eighth on Dave Winfield's triple, a walk, singles by Doug Rader, Mike Champion and Bob Davis plus an error by Felix Millan.

Brown, Brooks sparkle

A pair of all-time best performances highlighted boys district track action Thursday and several new district marks were also set.

Holdrege's Todd Brown's triple jump of 48-1 1/2 moved him into first place on the all-time Nebraska prep charts, while Randy Brooks of Creighton Prep ran the 120 high hurdles in 13.7 fastest in Nebraska prep history.

Brown's jump at Lexington which shattered the old record of 46-11 1/4 set by Lincoln Southeast's Steve Brittenham in 1972 snatched the top spot away from Tony Little of Mullen, who leaped 47-11 1/4, which also easily surpassed the old mark.

Brooks running in the A-2 meet at Ralston, broke the mark of 13.8 set in 1975 by Mashona Marsh of Omaha Benson.

In other district action Seward's Larry Keller uncorked the longest shot put ever in a district meet 59-5 to win that event in the B-3 meet at Seward.

Two new district pole vault marks were set as Jay Dier of Cozad cleared 15-1 to break the Class B standard, while Potter's Dave Weikhorst set a new Class D mark with a vault of 13-11. Tom Strain of Meridian tied the Class C mark with a vault of 13-6.

High jump marks were also assaulted as Centennial's Bruce Stahr leaped 6-8 to set a new Class C district mark while Mark Neil of Lexington tied the Class B mark by clearing 6-5.

Montreal rolls to another win

Boston (UPI) — Guy Lafleur, held without a shot in the first two games, notched a pair of goals and added two assists Thursday night in Montreal's 4-2 victory over the Boston Bruins, putting the Canadiens one game away from their second straight Stanley Cup.

The Canadiens can clinch their second straight Cup, and 20th overall, Saturday night at Boston Garden.

Referee Bob Myers whistled 12 penalties, six against each team, in the first period, but Montreal scored on three of its four power play advantages while Boston could not score on three — including a 1:06 span when the Bruins had a two-man advantage.

The Canadiens registered only six shots on Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers in the decisive first period. But half of the drives went in — off the sticks of linemates Lafleur, Steve Shutt and Jacques Lemaire.

Lafleur, held to three assists in the first two games, scored his first goal of the series at 4:08 of the opening period.

Boston got goals in the second period from Gregg Sheppard and in the third period from Peter McNab. But in between, Lafleur had scored his second goal at 12:52 of the third period to seal the game.

Boston was serving a bench minor penalty for too many men on the ice when Lafleur connected on a 15-foot wrist shot from the edge of the right faceoff circle that beat Cheevers to his right.

Montreal weathered a penalty to Murray Wilson, then scored again after Boston's Wayne Cashman was penalized for holding.

Shutt scored on a rebound of a Lemaire shot 56 seconds into the penalty at 7:58. Cheevers had saved Lemaire's shot from the left but dropped the puck from his glove and Shutt had an open shot from 10 feet.

Rutherford sets new Indy mark

Indianapolis (AP) — Defending champion Johnny Rutherford, waiting until the lengthening shadows cooled the blistering Indianapolis Motor Speedway, turned in a late-afternoon run of 200.624 miles per hour Thursday, the fastest lap in the history of the 68-year-old track.

Rutherford, who set the official Speedway record of 199.071 m.p.h. four years ago to the day, is the fourth driver to top 200 and the third in two days of practice for the May 29 Indianapolis 500. Official records may be set only during qualifications or the race itself.

The previous best was a lap of 200.4 by Gordon Johncock during tire tests last March. On Wednesday, Mario Andretti was clocked at 200.311 and A.J. Foyt reached 200.178.

Perry blanks Royals

United Press International

There's still plenty of life left in Gaylord Perry's aging right arm.

Texas fans were beginning to wonder whether the 38-year-old pitcher had lost his effectiveness after watching him get tagged for 35 runs in his last four starts.

But he showed them there is no immediate cause for concern Thursday night when he blanked the Milwaukee Brewers for four hits while pitching the Texas Rangers to a 2-0 victory.

Dave May's run-scoring single in the first inning and a run-scoring double by Claudell Washington in the fourth staked Perry to an early lead and the veteran right-hander made it stand up while gaining his second win in six decisions. In other American League action, Detroit walloped Milwaukee 9-1.

Rookie Dave Rozema allowed only five hits and Ron LeFlore and Steve Kemp hit homers to spark the Tigers to victory over the Brewers. The loss was Milwaukee's fourth straight and eighth in their last nine games.

Free out of playoffs

Houston (UPI) — The awakened Houston Rockets try to even their NBA semifinal playoff series against the Philadelphia 76ers Friday night and an injury report gives them a better shot at doing that.

Sixers guard Lloyd Free Thursday was ruled out as a participant in the fourth game due to what doctors think is a severe internal bruise in his right chest wall. Free returned to Philadelphia for consultation with the team's orthopedist.

"Lloyd definitely will not play Friday night and he is unlikely for Sunday," 76ers team physician Dr. Stanley Lorber said.

Free is Philadelphia's third guard and all season, especially against the Rockets, he has sparked his team off the bench.

Coach Gene Shue said he was not sure who would step into Free's place but that he might move forward Julius Erving to the position.

Starting guard Henry Bibby said Free's loss would hurt as the 76ers try to extend their 2-1 lead.

"In our offense we need three guards," Bibby said. "Lloyd has been able to come in and pick up the tempo of the game and whoever is in a breather. He's been a big plus to our offense."

The 76ers moved their Thursday practice to late in the day and said they would have to play more intensely in the next game to overcome the tough rebounding Rockets.

In the third game Wednesday night, Houston controlled the boards with a 59-34 rebounding edge and never allowed the devastating 76ers run-and-gun offense to get started.

Rockets guard Calvin Murphy said it is not so much what the 76ers come out to do as much as it is Houston's intensity that will control the game.

"I think we made them lackadaisical last night when we attacked them," Murphy said. "They were ready to play but we took it to them. Don't take anything away from the play of our big men. They were the key."

Rockets forward Moses Malone grabbed 25 rebounds and 7-foot center Kevin Kunnert added 14 more. The leading rebounder for the 76ers was George McGinnis with nine.

East, Omaha Northwest set for district opener

By Lee Johnson
Staff Sports Writer

Lincoln East and Omaha Northwest the two hottest teams entered in the Class A-1 district baseball tournament field, meet in the tournament's opening game Friday at Sherman Field at 2:30 p.m.

The Spartans and Huskies both suffered slow starts and were given the tournament's bottom two seeds when pairings were made several weeks ago, but both teams are currently on impressive winning streaks.

East, now 5-9, has won its last three games, defeating Omaha Cathedral, 6-5; Saturday, city champion Lincoln Northeast 7-6 Tuesday night and city runnerup Lincoln High 10-7 Wednesday night.

The Huskies having won their last seven games, bring the tournament's best record (11-5) to Lincoln.

None of the other three tournament teams, Northeast, Southeast and Lincoln High, has a winning streak, having all dropped their last game.

Northeast, who will play the winner of the East-Northwest game in semifinal action Monday at 4:30 p.m., has a 10-5 record and the tournament's top seed. Defending district champion, Southeast, 5-5 and Lincoln High 6-7, meet in the other semifinal game Monday at 7:00 p.m.

LSE golfers confident entering district meet

By Brian Hill
Staff Sports Writer

Lincoln Southeast golf coach Paul Austin is confident his team can win Friday's District A-1 golf tournament at Pioneer's Park and avenge a sudden death playoff loss to East for the district title last year.

It would be nice to win the district and we should win it, Austin said. The boys are really ready to play. The big thing, however, is finishing among the top three teams and qualifying for state.

The first five individual place-winners will also qualify for the state tournament May 13 at Hastings. Other schools vying with Southeast and East Friday will be Northeast, Lincoln High, Fremont, Beatrice, Norfolk and South Sioux City.

East will probably give us the most competition, Austin said. "Fremont should also be fairly close."

Carrying the Knights hopes will be seniors Knox Jones and Jim Druliner and sophomores Mark Maness and Clay Anderson.

Jones won a playoff for meet medalist honors in last year's district meet, after being for individual honors with a 73.

"Our kids have won most of the major meets this year and are confident they can win," Austin said. The competition hasn't seemed to be as tough this year, but East hasn't reached its potential yet.

Southeast has won titles this season in the 16-team Capital City Invitational, which they won by 10 strokes, and the 12-team LSE Invitational. The Knights finished second in the 15-team Beatrice Invitational losing a playoff to Omaha Westside.

Omaha Burke edged East by a single stroke in last year's state meet at Hastings. Southeast finished seventh

Crete, Neb. City B-1 favorites

Nebraska City and Crete are co-favored Friday to win the Class B-1 district boys track meet at Nebraska's Ed Weir Stadium.

The same 10 schools in the district also competed in the Fairbury Invitational last month with Nebraska City outdistancing Crete and Lincoln Plus X for the championship.

Crete's Tom Ourada and Nebraska City's Dave Ailes represent the feature matchup in the sprints. Nebraska City's Randy Landwehr, the defending state Class B-220 and 440 champion, will try to erase the scars of a disappointing spring thus far.

Plus owns the best three relay times, entering the meet. The Bolts qualified three relays for the state meet last year. Field events start at 12:30 p.m.

Preliminaries begin at 3:15 p.m. The final session starts at 6:30 p.m. with the last event scheduled for 7:45 p.m.

Portland Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers who have used speed as their money in the bank in the NBA Western Conference Playoffs with Los Angeles, can eliminate the Lakers with one more win Friday night.

And if Jerry West and his Lakers haven't seen enough Portland quickness, they may see even more in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series, which the Blazers lead 3-0.

Dave Twardzik, the smallest Blazer at 6-1, returns to action after being sidelined with an ankle injury suffered in the fifth game of the six-game set against Denver. He's

Girls state meet could be best ever

By Chuck Sinclair
Prep Sports Writer

North Platte — It was billed as the banner year in girls track and field or even the year of the superstars as the season neared.

It remains to be seen if the earlier predictions will hold true, but with the end immediately in sight in the Friday and Saturday running of the state championships at North Platte High School, the answers are just around the corner.

With the star-studded field assembled in central Nebraska for the seventh annual showcase, it still could become the best ever as holders of the all-time prep bests in eight of the 10 individual events are on hand to try and better their existing marks.

New marks have been set in four of the events already this season two on the track and two in the field.

Bassett's Donna Fox bettered her own all-time bests in both the 880 and mile with a 2:19.8 clocking in the half and 5:11.2 in the mile. Omaha Central's JoAnn Olsen has also recorded a 2:19.8 in the 880, and will get a chance to better Fox's state meet effort since the Class A race is run after Class C on Saturday.

Fox's and Olsen's marks came in the last meet before the state championships. Lincoln High discus thrower Robin Hruby made hers in the first.

After holding the nation's top prep mark last year as a junior at 144-0, the state gold medal winning effort, Hruby stretched that to 151-0 in the Lincoln Relays.

Bellevue high jumper Evonna Myers erased the oldest best on the all-time charts when she leaped 5-7 1/2 in a dual meet in mid-season.

Myers, Hruby, Fox and Olsen will be out to better those marks but the question remains as to what will happen in the other individual events.

All the individual bests could conceivably be broken with eight girls going after their own marks and two that are not out of reach.

The best that appears the safest is Benkelman's Danis Richards in the 440. Richards sped to a 57.3 mark in 1974, and the closest this season is Pam Schubarth of Scottsbluff at 58.1.

Hastings St. Cecilia's Nancy Kindig has two all-time bests by herself and a share of two relay bests.

The talented senior with a chance to become the leading gold medal winner of all time would like to get two of the three she needs in the relays.

series 2-1

Portland finished last in the Pacific Division five times in its first six years in the league and the best year until now was Bill Walton's first season when Lenny Wilkens coached the team to third place with Walton hurt much of the year. Wilkens was fired when the Blazers finished last a year ago and Walton still sidelined much of the season with injuries.

All we can continue to do is play tough, said the former all-time NBA star who led the Lakers to the best won-loss record in the league.

Going into game four, most players on the Blazer team were fighting off the effects of a virus, but it didn't stop them in game three Tuesday night, a 102-97 victory.

Portland fans already are in a state of euphoria over the Blazers' only a seven-season member of the NBA and on the verge of making the championship series against either Philadelphia or Houston. Philadelphia leads that

Consumer agency being fought by big business

Washington (AP) — Esther Peterson, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, said Thursday that big business is using "every tactic money can buy" to prevent passage of the bill to create a consumer protection agency.

She said she wasn't talking about some companies that have expressed support for the agency but about "the traditional bastions of big business representation in Washington."

"These big business representatives, led by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Procter and Gamble, General Motors and the Business Roundtable, have attacked the consumer protection agency bill with forces that Gen. (George S.) Patton would have envied," she said.

Big business is fighting the bill to protect its virtual monopoly over access to federal decision makers, Mrs. Peterson said in a speech prepared for the Women's National Democratic Club.

A bill, backed by President Carter, to establish an agency to speak for consumers before federal regulatory bodies, was approved by a one vote margin Tuesday by the House Government Operations Committee.

Opponents argue the American people want less government and fewer federal agencies.

Energy deregulation question debated

Washington (AP) — President Carter's chief energy adviser told Congress Thursday that natural gas producers privately admit they will make a lot of money under the administration's new pricing plan.

James Schlesinger also said that representatives of unnamed companies have told him in private they favored a cap on prices rather than deregulation to save them the embarrassment of a sharp run-up in prices.

But in public, Schlesinger told the House energy and power subcommittee, producers still plump for deregulation and for letting the free market determine the price.

An industry spokesman took issue with Schlesinger's profit outlook and insisted that natural gas prices must be deregulated to give the industry an incentive to discover and produce more gas.

David H. Foster, vice president of the Natural Gas Supply Committee, told the subcommittee that Carter's natural gas plan was a "composite of disincentives" for new production.

A.V. Jones, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America said, "The Carter package contains all the elements for economic chaos at home and political nightmares on the international front."

Senate Republicans called for removal of price controls on gas and oil in the alternative energy program unveiled Thursday.

The 38 GOP senators said energy prices should be allowed to rise to world-market levels through deregulation. They opposed Carter's proposed taxes on cars, gasoline and domestic oil production.

Their plan calls for an immediate lifting of price controls from newly discovered natural gas and oil but with a "windfall profits tax" on energy companies that fail to reinvest their added profits in exploration.

Schlesinger said deregulation now would result in a $20 billion windfall for producers, a shift of about one per cent of the gross national product. The price for gas could conceivably go to $6 per thousand cubic feet, four times the current interstate price.

The talk of deregulation "is particularly inappropriate" in an industry where prices historically have been controlled by monopolies, international companies or cartels, Schlesinger said.

Meanwhile, Carter's three principal economic advisers said the energy plan will result in some increases in inflation, but will have no impact on unemployment or the country's rate of economic growth.

"It will not have a major impact on the economy," said Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, who testified with Budget Director Bert Lance and Charles Schultz, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, before the House ad hoc energy committee.

Schultz said that because the Carter energy plan calls for recycling billions of new and higher energy taxes back into the economy, "the real incomes of consumers will remain approximately unchanged, or perhaps even increase slightly."

Schultz said the inflation rate, which has been climbing at a 10 per cent annual rate so far this year, will rise by three to four-tenths of 1 per cent from 1977 to 1979 as a result of the higher prices Americans will pay for oil, natural gas and gasoline.

Like Rommel in his tank, mechanic claims road

Seattle (UPI) — The car Jeff Zerr drives to work used to be a 1962 Ford before it was in an accident. Now it's a tank.

"My wife didn't want to spend the money to repair the front end, so I got a crate from Boeing, a bed frame and a part of a garage door and built a tank," said Zerr, a 25-year-old mechanic who spends his working days repairing cars.

The tank is equipped with a phone and 10-foot pipe for a gun that can fire a missile about 200 feet in unpredictable directions. The hatches are made of toilet seats. Optional equipment includes a machine gun mounted on top.

"This is a real economy car. It cost me about $75 to build, but I have been offered $700 for it," Zerr said.

One benefit of driving the tank to work is that people just naturally stop and stare so he can slip into the traffic, he says. Or when the freeway is crowded, someone can crawl through the turret on top of the tank, take a look around for the fastest lane, and call Zerr on the phone inside the tank and tell him where to go.

Before building the tank in July, Zerr built a police car out of an old Ford, a fire engine out of wood and a car body, and a Batmobile — his first and favorite job in 1969.

"I want to build another Batmobile, only this time I want to hook up a vacuum cleaner that will spray flour out the back," said the mechanic.

But Zerr's dream project is a cabin cruiser that goes down the highway.

"You could steer it standing up, kind of like a mail truck," he said. "I think that would be fun to drive."

Home from gamma cure, mummy rests in Cairo

Cairo (AP) — The 3,212-year-old mummy of Ramses II, home from a cure in France, was uncerated Thursday in a delicate four-hour operation inside a special sterilized tent.

French nuclear physicists and mummy experts opened the wooden crate in which the mummy was flown here from Paris. They lifted an airtight plexiglass cover and removed foam rubber and silk paper stuffed around the pharaoh inside his own coffin.

The team worked with built-in gloves through a special inflatable nylon tent to protect them from the possible harmful effects of touching radiated objects and at the same time to prevent unclean air from reaching the mummy.

Ramses was subjected to a massive dose of gamma rays as part of the treatment to arrest decay.

The French experts were among 80 others ranging from cosmeticians to nuclear physicists who worked on the corpse for almost eight months in Paris before detecting and eliminating 60 types of fungi with radiation.

"THE CHINESE CONNECTION"

North East, Pa. (AP) — Marshall Kreft lived 50 of his 71 years in this tiny community, his most visible activity a daily walk with his dog down Main Street.

A former vice president of a local manufacturing firm, Kreft led a solitary life, was not involved in civic affairs and attracted little attention until he died in March — and left 90 per cent of his estimated $1 million estate to North East.

"Our original reaction was 30 seconds of dead silence when we first heard of the inheritance at a borough council meeting," said Mayor Donald Videtto. "But we were shocked when we later learned that Mr. Kreft's estate was valued in excess of $1 million."

Videtto says the council has made no plans for the money other than a pledge "to use it wisely."

"This is a tremendous gift," the mayor said. "He gave it to every citizen of the borough and everyone will share it."

The money left by Kreft, a native of Chicago, averages out to about $180 for each of the 5,000 residents of North East, located near Erie in northwestern Pennsylvania. It would be enough for the borough to suspend tax collections for four years if it so chose.

But the money has already sparked mild controversy.

"People are generally excited about it, but I think it'll cause some problems because everyone has a way to spend the money," said Peggy Nagelson, editor of the weekly North East Breeze. "People tend to be greedy, you know."

Suggestions for spending the money are pouring in. Some want a medical center. Others say it should be spent for the benefit of the many elderly people here.

"We're getting letters from all over the country from people wanting money," Videtto said. "One young man even wanted money to buy a high school class ring."

'Radar Willie'—20 cool years

Chicago (AP) — "Radar Willie," who holds one of Chicago's most nerve-racking jobs, says his farm upbringing has kept him cool as a cucumber.

Wilfred Johnson, 47, was presented Chicago's Cerificate of Merit Thursday by acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic.

He's the only man to complete 20 years as an air traffic controller at O'Hare International Airport.

Hospital administrators believe local costs fair

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln area residents are getting the best hospital care for the money they spend, Lincoln's three hospital administrators told reporters at a Thursday press conference.

"If you would take the $150 to $160 per patient day cost and divide it by 24 hours and compare that to the cost of having things done in your home, like repairing the washing machine or television," you'd probably find hospital costs are not out of line, said Robert Brungard, administrator of Lincoln General Hospital.

"I feel we give a great deal of care for the money," he said. "And I'm tired of getting compared to hospitals in Orange County, Calif., or New York City."

"Their cost of living is higher . . . and that is all part of it. But we're not there, we're here."

The three agreed that hospital and health care costs are on the rise. But to inhibit or reverse that trend would mean a cut in the quality and quantity of services, they said.

"The public has to set its priorities as to what kind of health care it wants," said St. Elizabeth Health Center administrator Jack Stiles. "We could cut services and cut the quality of services significantly."

"Health care costs can be controlled," he added, but the level of care may suffer.

For example, the total hospital dollar reduction called for by the Carter administration, Stiles said, "could be attained by cutting out the entire renal disease program."

The administrators took issue with President Carter's proposal to place a 9% increase lid on hospital revenues.

"I hope it doesn't happen. It's totally unfair," said Eugene Edwards, administrator for Bryan Memorial Hospital. "There are some bad apples, but each hospital should be looked at individually."

Besides, it is unreasonable to put a limit on hospital increases when there is no control "on the people who supply us," Brungard said.

Generally, gross revenue increases ranged from 9% to 11% for the three Lincoln hospitals during the past year, Stiles said. Still, to place a lid on hospitals diminishes budgeting flexibility.

With the 9% limit, there is no allowance for potential minimum wage increases for employees, implementation of technological advances through the purchase of new equipment or the hiring of skilled personnel to operate it, or for the fluctuating number of admissions, they said.

Lincoln hospitals already are attempting to increase production and efficiency through required audits and periodic, in-depth departmental studies, they added.

And in the past 10 years the three hospitals have worked cooperatively to avoid unnecessary duplication of services, Brungard said.

For instance, St. Elizabeth has the neonatal unit and the burn center, Bryan provides the cardiac surgery-treatment unit and Lincoln General offers chemical dependency treatment, the body scanner and the one-day, minor surgery center.

These indicate an attempt to hold the reins on hospital costs, but the hospitals can't control the cost of utilities, food, supplies and other materials necessary for running a hospital, the three agreed. Somebody has to absorb these increases, and it's usually the patient.

"The people who are complaining about the costs are those who brought it all on," Edwards said, referring to the federal government.

"Before July 1, 1966, there was not so much furor about hospital costs, until the government got so involved in the Medicaid and Medicare programs," he added. "We're asked to be scapegoats for the government."

Because Medicaid and Medicare reimbursements are not equivalent to the actual cost of providing services, Stiles said, of St. Elizabeth's 1977 budget, three-quarters of a million dollars in revenues has been set aside to handle "that share of the Medicaid-Medicare program not paid by the federal government."

"That is an additional tax for the patient who uses a third-party payor (insurance) or for the private-paying patient," he said.

In addition, "it is interesting to note that the problem with overbidding in many areas is a result of the government's encouraging hospitals to build through the Hill-Burton legislation, he added.

Brungard said that Lincoln General spent $24,000 last year alone to make changes in its nine-year-old plant. The changes, he said, were required by the federal government.

And although he has no quarrel with the intent of a recent regulation requiring all hospitals to be accessible to the handicapped, Brungard said, implementation of this will cost around $900 million nationwide.

The government is saying, "you can only spend so much money, but you have to do exactly what we tell you to do, no matter what it costs," Brungard said, adding that regulations are changing constantly.

When people complain about the cost of health care, "I hope they think about the human salvage factor," he said, "of the recovered alcoholic, the person walking around with a pacemaker" or those with knees and hips rebuilt with artificial joints.

"You get a lot of return for the costs," he said.
